This study aims to develop an online English learning medium tailored for eighth-grade students of SMP Negeri 5 Palopo. It addresses the following research question: what type of website is suitable for English learning for eighth-grade students at SMP Negeri 5 Palopo To facilitate students in learning English, a website called "Macca" was developed based on conclusions derived from a needs analysis. Utilizing the 4D model (Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate), this study employed research and development techniques. Data were collected through expert validation, student responses, a needs analysis questionnaire completed via Google Forms, and interviews. A total of 18 eighth-grade students and one English teacher from SMP Negeri 5 Palopo participated in the study. The website consists of four main menu sections: mini dictionary, videos, quizzes, and teaching content. Experts validated the product by completing a provided questionnaire. The average score from the validators was 93.75%, categorized as “excellent.” This score was supported by student interview results, which revealed that the website was highly engaging due to its appealing features and well-designed content, which was connected to students' everyday lives.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Information and communication technology, or ICT, indicates the progress of human civilization in the Industrial 4.0 era. In the era of ever-developing communication and knowledge, education is also experiencing extraordinary changes¹. In the era of growing globalization, mastering English has become a crucial skill. English is an international communication tool and a key to accessing a wide range of educational, career, and cultural opportunities in the modern world. However, many people often face challenges in learning English, one of which is a lack of motivation and interest in learning, as well as ineffective teaching methods.

Amid this dynamic, the Internet has become an invaluable resource in facilitating English language learning. This is in line with research conducted by Masruddin (2014), who states, “The role of media technology is needed in the learning process where the media is not only a tool but as an integral part of the education system and learning process.”² One of the most prominent forms is English language learning websites. A study by Zhang & Zou (2020) highlights the importance of Using technology in language learning to promote practices, deliver instructional content, facilitate interactions, and restructure teaching approaches with a positive overall impact.³ This is consistent with Nugroho & Grendi, as cited in Meduri et al. (2022), who states that websites are the right solution for an alternative tool in selecting face-to-face and remote teaching media.⁴

Websites are learning media with many advantages, including their ability to run on many operating systems (OS). Website-Based Learning Media can run on Android, iOS, Windows, and many more. So that teachers and students can operate the website through various devices. According to Abdullah, a website is a collection of pages containing digital data information in the form of text, images, animation, sound, and video or a combination of everything provided via an internet connection so accessible and visible to everyone worldwide. Website pages are created using a standard language, namely HTML. A web browser will translate this HTML script so it can be displayed in the form of readable information by everyone (2018:1).⁵

Based on direct observations conducted by researcher on students at one of the State Junior High Schools (SMPN) 5 Palopo in learning English, it is known that the use of learning media is still not effective in meeting the needs of students, where teachers still refer to package books and LKS. Some students still have a low interest in learning and are said to get bored quickly with the lack of variety in learning. Lesson hours are very limited due to time compression. The school is by the face-to-face rules.

With this problem, teachers and students need media to support more effective learning.

Websites have become one of the media that is quite effective in the learning process in schools because the need for the use of technology in education is increasingly urgent, and changes in the learning paradigm are leading to a more interactive, personal, and flexible approach. Based on the explanation above, the researcher wants to design a website-based learning media called the MACCA website for student learning at SMPN 5 Palopo.

The researcher took the name Macca as a characteristic of the website created; Macca itself was taken from the Bugis language, which means smart, so the researcher concluded that the Macca website was created so that students could be smart in learning English and have high motivation in learning.

Macca was previously used for a project as an application, but due to limitations in making it, the researcher took the initiative to conduct research by creating a website using the name Macca.

B. Research Question

Regarding the limitation of the problem, the researcher formulated the following formulation of the problem: "What is an appropriate website English learning for grade VIII students of SMPN 5 Palopo?".

C. The Objective of the Research

The purpose of the study, based on the problem formulation, is to design an English learning website for grade VIII students of SMPN 5 Palopo.

D. The Specification of the Research

Product specifications are expected in this study as a container to provide learning materials in various formats (text, images, and video) relevant to the learning topic.

E. The Significance of the Research

There are two expected parts of this study, as follows:

1. Theoretically

The researcher is expected to use this medium as a reference for further research.

2. Practically

- a. This study is expected to be useful for English teachers as one of the teaching media that can improve the quality of English learning.
- b. Students are expected to use this media to improve their ability to learn English and as a motivation for students to learn English.

F. The Assumption and Delimitation of The Research

The researcher have several assumptions in designing websites for English learning class VIII SMPN 5 Palopo as follows:

1. Teachers will use this website as a medium of instruction to help the learning process in class.
2. Students will use this website as a learning medium for their needs.

Furthermore, the researcher has some delimitations in this research as follows:

1. The materials used are quite limited.
2. Material that is difficult to understand.
3. Limitations in programming skills.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Previous Related Research Findings

Some previous research related to this research about English learning on the website is mentioned below.

Sahrullah (2020), in his thesis entitled "Development of Web-Based Learning Media on Islamic Religious Education Subjects at SMAN 2 Palangka Raya."⁶ This research starts with the development of technology and information that has a major impact on the world of education. The similarity in this study can be seen in the learning style of students who are transitioning to the digital age as well as research methods that use R&D methods. As a comparison, the difference lies in the development of web-based learning media in Islamic Religious Education subjects at SMAN 2 Palangka Raya. In contrast, this research focuses on designing web-based learning media that focuses on English language learning at SMPN 5 Palopo.

Muh Fiqri (2023), in her thesis entitled “Designing Website For Learning Speaking Skill (A Study on English Department Students of IAIN Palopo.”⁷ This research discusses the use of Website-Based Learning Media to improve speaking among students at IAIN Palopo. What these studies have in common is that they both use skills that focus on the application of research and development (R&D) methods, and both want to create a medium that can be used in the website-based teaching and learning process. There are differences between Muh's research. Fiqri with this research. Website-based Fiqri learning focuses on speaking skills, while this website-based research focuses on basic English material using integrated skills.

Suanah et al. (2019), In his research entitled "Development of web-based learning media wix Design Mathematics building materials Elementary School Class V."⁸ This research aims to develop a web-based learning media Wix Design Building Materials Mathematics Elementary School Class V. Research design is a research development conducted based on six stages of the process, namely the concept, design, collection of materials, manufacture, testing, and publication. The difference lies in mathematics website media, whereas this research uses website media in English language learning. From the three studies above, the difference lies in the use of learning materials. In this case, the research focuses on designing a website that focuses on English language learning.

Nuraisyah (2024), in his thesis entitled "Development of POWTOON Multimedia-Based Animated Video Learning Media on the Material of Changes in the Form of Objects Class III SDN 277 Sambirejo.”⁹ This study aims to determine the needs analysis, design design, validity, and practicality of Powtoon multimedia-based learning media based on material changes in the form of objects. This type of research is Research & Development (R&D). Nuraisyah's research has similarities with this research, namely using the (R&D) method.

Renita Ansar (2023). In her thesis entitled “Development of an Educational Website Based on Islamic Values at SMA Negeri 5 Luwu South Sulawesi.”¹⁰ Website media development done by Renita Ansar focuses on learning Islamic Religious Education, while this research focuses on website design for English language learning. This research focuses on website design in English language learning.

The researcher concluded that from several previous studies, there are some similarities obtained, namely the use of learning media using websites with the (R&D) method, but this study has differences from previous studies, namely a website that has several features in it by combining text, video, and audio on the website.

B. Literature Review

1. Material Development

Material development is a crucial process in education that involves the creation of teaching materials designed to facilitate effective learning. It encompasses various stages, from identifying the needs of learners to the final evaluation of the materials in use. The process involves several key elements, including the learner, the learning objectives, the methods of instruction, and the assessment of the materials.¹¹

The materials themselves are created in the following phase. The materials development approach is detailed, with a focus on producing materials for specific English language teaching objectives. When developing educational materials for specific purposes, students' needs must come first. The materials development process should begin with a needs analysis in the context of ESP, followed by course content determination and material design.¹²

The next stage is the development of the materials themselves. “Developing English for specific purposes (ESP) learning materials should be systematic and based on assessment criteria to ensure quality and facilitate creative and integrated learning for students.”¹³ The materials are then tested in a controlled environment, known as a field test, to assess their effectiveness and identify areas for improvement.

The development of materials is a critical component of teaching and learning, as it directly impacts the quality of education. Effective materials can enhance learner engagement, improve knowledge retention, and support the achievement of learning objectives. Conversely, poor materials can lead to learner disengagement, decreased motivation, and, ultimately, poor learning outcomes.

In the context of English language teaching, material development is particularly important due to the diverse needs and goals of learners. Materials should be designed to cater to the specific needs of learners, whether they are general English learners or those with specific purposes, such as business or academic English.

Materials development is a process that involves the identification, assessment, and implementation of new materials, tools, technologies, and methodologies that have the potential to improve student learning.

2. Google Site

Google Sites is a tool for creating websites or web pages for teams, projects, events, or other special needs. It is ideal for creating internal websites that will only be accessed by certain people and have very specific features and functions.

Google Sites function is needed to increase time productivity. Some of the points on Google Sites include:

- a. An intranet or wiki for your company should include guidelines, regulations, contact information, and so on.
- b. Project team with meeting calendar (Google Calendar), documents (Google Docs), budget sheets (Google Sheets), and presentations (Google Slides).
- c. An interstate family featuring news, photos, and events.
- d. Online resumes contain information on education, work experience, skills, achievements, and more.
- e. An online portfolio is used to showcase your work, such as articles, designs, videos, etc.
- f. Class website that contains lesson schedules, class rules, and assignment lists.
- g. Club or community with training schedules, agendas, maps to event locations, member data, and photo collections.

3. Website

- a. Website Definition

A website is also called a website, website, or portal. It is a collection of web pages related to one another; the first page of a website is the home page, while each page is individually called a web page; in other words, a website is a site that can be accessed and viewed by internet users throughout the world. A website is a site that can be accessed and viewed by Internet users.

Websites are one of the most frequently accessed platforms for searching for various information and means of communication. A website is a group of pages on the internet whose contents can include text, media, and applications.

b. Element and Component of Website

There are some elements and components of a website:

1) Title

The title of a website has a very crucial role. Just like the title of a book or article, the website title serves as the main identity and entrance for visitors.

2) Domain Name

A domain name can also be called a website. Domain registrars pay for domain names annually. Domains are used to make it easier for people to remember the name of a website. Sometimes, domain names also represent personal names, brand names, products, or companies. Example: www.smart.com

3) URL Address

URL stands for Uniform Resource Locator. If our web page can be likened to a house, then the URL is the complete address of our home, which is located in the web browser. Each web page has its own unique and different URL. URL formats vary quite a bit.

However, it all always starts with the website domain name.

4) Link

If we analogize again that a web page is a house, this link is the door/gate/hallway that leads to our home or the page we want to go to. Generally, it is blue when clicked to move to another page. This means that if the link is clicked, it will move to another page, such as <https://www.google.com>.

5) Header

The header is the top part of a website. Usually, it contains the site name, logo, and description on the web. The header functions to display the main identity of a site.

6) Content

The content of a site is in the form of information and articles, which are usually located in the middle. Content is also the most important part of a website.

7) Sidebar

The sidebar is the right or left side of a website and is located on the side of the content. On a website, sidebars typically offer navigation and other information.

8) Footer

The footer is the basic or bottom part of a website. Its main function is as a footer and contains copyright information, ownership, additional links, resources, sponsors, and credits of a website. Website and even display widgets.

9) Menu

A menu is part of a website containing the main links that lead to certain pages.

10) Sharing Button Bar

The sharing button bar is where the various sharing buttons on social media are located. This sharing button shares posts or content on the visited page to the visitor's social media.

Figure 2.6 Sharing button bar of a website

Most web pages include multimedia, which refers to applications that combine text with media. These media include:

a) Graphics

Graphics represent contextualized information, such as images, charts, or photographs. A website often uses infographics to present concepts, products, and news. Infographics are a visual representation of data or information using graphs and diagrams. Graphic formats that are often used to display images on a website are JPEG and PNG formats.

b) Animation

Animation is the appearance of motion created by displaying a series of still images in sequence. For example, text animated by scrolling across the screen can serve as a ticker to display information.

c) Audio

Audio on a website includes music, speech, or other sounds. An audio file is compressed to reduce its file size. The most common audio format is MP3, which reduces the audio file to about one-tenth of its original size while retaining most of the original sound quality.

d) Video

The video consists of images that are played in motion. Users can upload, share, or view video clips on websites. Video files are often compressed due to their large size. Videos posted to a website usually take less than ten minutes.

c. Types of Website

The types of websites are divided based on the purpose and function of the website itself, according to Sebok, Vermat, and Mysch.id there are seven types of websites.¹⁴ Such as:

1) Search Engine

Search engines are software that finds websites, web pages, images, videos, news, maps, and other information related to a particular topic.

¹⁴ Sebok et al., “DEFINISI WEBSITE” 7 (2018): 15–117, <http://eprints.uny.ac.id/id/eprint/62849>.

2) E-commerce

E-commerce websites are better known as online shop websites. The owner can be an individual or a company. This website is a display of products or services that will be sold by the website owner or people who partner with the website owner. From that information, the purpose of this website is clearly to make a profit from the sales and services offered.

3) Company Website

Unlike e-commerce websites, company websites contain goods or services but introduce their products or services so that potential buyers are more familiar with products and services and their benefits—company profiles. So, the company website focuses not on selling.

4) Agency and Organisation

This website belongs to an agency or non-profit organization, both government and private. This website aims to socialize an agency's work programs, activity reports, etc.

In Indonesia, official government agency websites are usually identified by the.go.id domain, while for organizations, it is generally identified by the .org or .or.id domain.

5) Education Website

Education websites contain information from institutions, from higher education to primary education and even early childhood education. To create an educational website, an educational institution, school, or university should make a special submission to PANDI (Indonesian et al.). Higher education websites usually use the .ac.id extension, while school websites usually have the sch—id extension.

6) News, Weather, Sports, and Other Mass Media

This website contains newsworthy material, including stories and articles about current events, life, money, politics, weather, and sports.

7) Social Media

Social media websites are the most popular websites among internet users. With this website, users can easily exchange information, make friends, or follow the latest news from someone personally. Some people utilize social media for work purposes and to make money. That is, by selling physical, digital, or service products.¹⁵

d. How to Design a Website

There are various ways to create a website, but here, the researcher explains one of the simplest and easiest ways to create a website. Here are the steps¹⁶:

¹⁵ Mysch.id, “Jenis-Jenis Website,” last modified 2021, accessed February 23, 2023, <https://www.mysch.id/blog/detail/61/jenis-jenis-website-dan-penjelasan-lengkapnya>.

¹⁶ Jefri Y, “Cara Membuat Website Gratis Di Google Sites,” 2024, <https://www.dewaweb.com/blog/cara-membuat-google-sites/>.

1) Access Google Sites

The first step you need to take is, of course, to access the Google Sites page. You will be required to use a Google account to use this tool and save the website you create.

2) Create a New Website

After successfully logging in to the Dashboard page, you will be greeted with several template options at the top of the page. You can choose one of these templates to speed up the website creation process.

Apart from using a template, you can also create a website from scratch by selecting the 'Start a new site' option at the top left of the page.

3) Determine the Website and Page Title

After creating a new website, you need to fill in the website title and main page to make it easier to remember. You can change the website title at the top left of the page. Meanwhile, the title of the main page can be changed by clicking on the words 'Your page title.'

4) Arrange Website Design

After setting the website title and main page, you can start playing around with the design or appearance of your website. To do this, you need to recognize the various features offered by the Google Sites editor.

In the Google Sites interface, you can find three sets of editor menus in the middle, top, and side. Such as:

a) Central Editor

This middle editor functions to manage all elements that will appear on the website directly.

After you add various elements, you can change their position and make changes such as changing the font, changing the background color, arranging paragraphs, and so on through this editor.

b) Top Editor

At the top of the screen, several buttons function to perform actions that are not directly related to the website design. The following are the functions of these buttons (from left to right):

- (1) Undo: Cancels changes that have been made one step back.
- (2) Redo: Roll back changes that have been made one step forward.
- (3) Preview: Opens a preview of the website being created.
- (4) Copy Link: Copy the link to the website (if it has been published)
- (5) Share with Others: Show the website with others or share website ownership access to collaborate.
- (6) Settings: Opens several website settings, including connecting it to Google Analytics.

- (7) More: Displays additional functions such as viewing change history or duplicating a website.
- (8) Publish The button to publish the website so that anyone can access it.

c) Side Editor

On the right side of the page, you can find a section menu that contains various functions. The three menus are:

(1) Insert

Let us discuss them one by one, starting from the function under the Insert menu. In the top group, you can see four colored buttons. The following are the functions of the four buttons:

- (a) Text box: Creates an area that can be filled with text.
- (b) Images: Embed images on a website by uploading from a computer or selecting from available stock.
- (c) Embed: Embed web elements from another page using a URL or HTML embed code.
- (d) Drive: Add files from Google Drive to the website you are creating.

In the bottom sub-menu entitled 'Layout,' you can see several layout options for elements on the website you are creating. You can select any of these layouts to arrange group elements.

You can arrange several layouts on one page at once to improve the aesthetics of the website. At the very bottom of the Insert menu is a list containing various additional elements with various functions.

You can use these elements to enhance website functionality with dividers, calendars, YouTube, and more.

(2) Page

To the right of the Insert tab, you can see a tab with the title Pages. This Pages tab functions to:

- (a) Create a new page
- (b) Manage pages on the website
- (c) Show/hide pages from the Navigation bar

(3) Themes

The last tab on the right menu is Themes. As the name suggests, this tab contains various theme options that you can use from Google Sites. However, you can also create your theme with logos, images, fonts, and color schemes that you can customize as you wish.

5) Website Publication

Once you are satisfied with the appearance of your website, you can immediately publish it by pressing the Publish button at the top right of the page.

When you press the Publish button, you can set the URL for your website. If you use a personal Google account, your website URL will have the following structure:

<https://sites.google.com/view/nama-website>

However, if you use a school or company Google account, your website URL will contain the name of the organization in it:

<https://sites.google.com/namaorganization/nama-website>

After you determine the URL you want to use to access the website, press Publish, and other people will access your website.

6) Add Custom Domain

Even though the Google Sites platform can be said to be very simple when compared to other website builders, your website can still look professional.

To make your website even better, you can add a custom domain to replace the URL that was set in the previous step.

7) Connect Domain to Google Sites

Once you have a custom domain, you can connect it to Google Sites. You can connect a custom domain via the settings menu.

Enter the domain you want to use with Google Sites. Then, proceed to the domain ownership verification process.

To verify domain ownership, you must choose the name of the domain registrar. If you cannot find the name of the hosting provider, select the Other option in the drop-down menu provided.

The following are the steps to verify domain ownership.

- a) Copy the code that appears in the ownership verification section
- b) Visit the web hosting/domain provider portal and then look for the domain management menu.
- c) Create a new TXT record under the domain you registered via the web hosting portal you use.
- d) After the TXT record has been successfully created, press the Verify button on the Google Webmaster page.
- e) After that, you will see two lines of code for the CNAME record as below.
- f) Then go back to the web hosting portal and add a new CNAME record.
- g) Enter the code labeled CNAME Label/Host into the Hostname column.
- h) Wait a few moments until the domain is successfully connected, and click Verify to verify domain ownership.

Those are the simplest and easiest steps to create a website.

4. Instructional Design Materials

Richards (2001:251) summarises the roles of materials (particularly course books) in language teaching as 1) A resource for presentation materials (spoken and written). 2) A source of activities for learner practice and communicative interaction. 3) A grammar, vocabulary, and pronunciation reference source for learners. 4) A source of stimulation and ideas for classroom activities. 5) A syllabus (where they reflect learning objectives that have already been determined). 6) Support for less experienced teachers who have yet to gain confidence.¹⁷

David Nunan (2017) identified the six principles of materials design¹⁸:

- a. Materials should be linked to the curriculum they serve.

Materials should be chosen based on their relevance to the objective and goals of the curriculum.

- b. Materials should be authentic in terms of text and task.

Text refers to the authenticity of the input data, which are used as a point of departure in materials development. Task authenticity refers to what learners do about input data. Learners are asked to undertake tasks that replicate or rehearse their communicative behaviors.

- c. Materials should stimulate interaction.

Materials should stir interaction among learners. Materials must cause the conversation among interlocutors for them to negotiate to mean, interpret signs and symbols, or understand dialogues.

- d. Materials should allow learners to focus on formal aspects of the language.

¹⁷ Yulianti, “Designing English Instructional Materials for the Eleventh Grade of Accounting Students At SMK Negeri 1 Wonosari,” 2011.

¹⁸ Dr. Marcedita Alberto, “Principles in Materials Design,” 2017, https://www.slideshare.net/rhonamerica/principles-in-materials-design?from_action=save.

There is evidence that learners can benefit from form-focused activities that require them to solve problems, form and perform hypotheses, come to conclusions, and construct their own rules from instances and examples of language use.

- e. Materials should encourage learners to develop learning skills and skills in learning.

Learning skills refer to 4Cs: Critical thinking, creative thinking—communication, and collaborating. While skills in learning are those research on learning styles and work in learner-centered curriculum development, it has led to the trend of incorporating into materials activities that teach students about learning as it is impossible to teach everything students need to know in class. Hence, it is necessary to provide learners with efficient learning strategies, develop skills in self-evaluation, assist them in setting their objectives, and develop skills needed to negotiate the curriculum.

- f. Materials should encourage learners to apply their developing skills to the world beyond the classroom.

A good language learner who always looks for opportunities must be made a part of the materials. Many learners fail to connect the language work done in class and the language they encounter outside—tasks designed to get learners to apply their skills need to be elaborated.

C. Conceptual Framework

Teaching media is very important in supporting students' interest in learning. Therefore, a researcher is interested in supporting learning media products through websites that are in line with technological developments and the times.

The Macca website is a website that contains English learning, to help students learn anytime and anywhere by using internet technology as a teaching and learning medium. In line with Nugroho (2018), "Websites or blogs can make learning more interesting, fun, make students learn actively, interactively and flexibly.¹⁹

The researcher used the Research and Development method at the design stage by applying the 4D model. First, the researcher analyses students' needs by interviewing students and directly observing students' daily lives. The demands of the target situation determine the type of needs.²⁰ After data collection, the researcher designed a website for English learning according to previous data analysis. Once designed, researcher developed a website to learn English to disseminate the product. Next, the researcher implemented the product by conducting direct trials on the target. This aims to determine the validity, reliability, and suitability of the product. Researcher display products using questionnaires and interviewing the target audience.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. Research Design

Research and development (R&D) will be used for this research. The goal of research and development will be to validate and develop the product. To validate a product, the researcher will need to test the effectiveness or validity of the existing product. Explaining a product will mean that the researcher must be able to develop an existing product (to make it more practical, effective, or efficient) or create new products that still need to be created. The product will include worksheets, programs, or modules.

As part of this study, the researcher will design a website for English Language Learning. In designing a product, the researcher will carry out needs analysis through qualitative and quantitative research, design product prototypes, develop products based on expert advice, implement products according to objectives, and deploy products based on data collected during implementation. Next, the researcher will apply the 4D (Define et al., Disseminate) model to product development.

B. Subject & Object of The Research

The participants in this research will be class VIII of Junior High School (SMPN) 5 Palopo.

C. Instrument of the research

This study used a questionnaire to analyze students' needs regarding the expected features of an English learning website. In-depth interviews were conducted with some students and teachers to explore their learning preferences and perceptions of English learning websites.

D. Research Procedure

Procedures in design or development are the steps that must be followed in making a product. In this development, the researcher adopted the 4-D development model, namely:

1. Define

At the analysis stage, the researcher analyzed student needs (deficiencies, needs, and desires) to develop products. The researcher used a questionnaire to collect data based on student needs. in line with Amalia Yahya research which states that material development must go through an initial needs analysis so that it can be effective results.²¹

2. Design

The data was collected during the analysis phase and used to design new products. Products were designed based on data from the analysis stage.

At this stage, the researcher creates content to be used in learning media and tools to validate designs. At this stage, the researcher designs his website from the internet. In addition, a researcher uses instruments used during the development stage.

3. Develop

At the development stage, the researcher developed a prototype product called the English learning website.

Validators validate product prototypes using instruments developed during the design phase. Validators evaluate designs by considering content suitability, language suitability, visual suitability, and suitability of the approach used in the product. Validation continues until the prototype is ready to be implemented by students.

4. Disseminate

The next step is to disseminate. After the product is developed and revised based on the assessment, the product is given to grade VIII students at one of the State Junior High School (SMPN) 5 Palopo.

E. Data Collection

1. Interview

As part of their needs analysis, the researcher surveyed students, focusing on English language instruction. Several question points discussed students' understanding of English language learning.

2. Questionnaire

Questionnaires help the researcher collect data about (needs, lacks, and wants) which are the subject of this research.

Questionnaires were distributed to analyze students' perceived needs and collect their assessment of product development skills. The survey consisted of 27 questions, one of which was about student needs: What features do you expect in an English learning website? For wants, what activity do you like in reading?

F. Data Analysis

1. The Data Analysis of Instruments' Need Analysis

The researcher validated the needs analysis instrument with experts. To collect validation scores, the researcher calculated the average using the following formula:

$$x = \frac{\Sigma x}{N}$$

X = Mean
 Σx = Total of an aspect
 N = Total of the instruments' questions

The following data conversion table categorizes the average score and percentage results.

Table 3.1 The Example of Data Conversion Table

Aspect	Mean
Contents
Scope of Contents
Language
Average Score

2. The Data Analysis of the Interview

The researcher uses the descriptive qualitative method to analyze the data collected during the interview.

3. Data Analysis of Questionnaire

The researcher analyzed the data using quantitative descriptive methods. The researcher calculated the percentage using the following formula:²²

$$x = \frac{\Sigma x}{N} \times 100\%$$

X = Percentage (%)

Σx = Students who have the same answers.

²² Reski Jayanti Sagita et al., "Designing English Syllabus for Islamic Education Study Program at IAIN Palopo," FOSTER: Journal of English Language Teaching 1 no. 1 (2020).

N = Total of the Student.

The most frequently chosen answer by students indicates the most agreed-upon choice. This became the data for the researcher to design a website. To visualize the data, the researcher used a bar chart according to the percentage of data.

4. Data Analysis of Expertise Judgement and Students' Perception

The researcher applies the Likert scale to calculate the data of expert judgment. The result of the data is calculated by the average of the experts' answers. The data analysis uses the formula as follows:

The number of Excellent answers : E x 4 = ...

The number of Good answers : G x 3 = ...

The number of Average answer : A x 2 = ...

The number of Poor answer : P x 1 = ...

Total score = ...

To find the percentage (x), the total score will be averaged (Mean) using the following formula:

$$M = \frac{B}{N}$$

M= Mean score

B = Total Score.

N = The Number of Topic Materials

After collecting the average (Mean), the researcher calculates the average to find the percentage (x) by using the formula as follows:

$$x = \frac{M}{N} \times 100\%$$

X = Percentage (%)

M = Mean score.

N = Total of the Student.

After collecting the results, the researcher determined that it was a website for learning English in class VIII. The following data conversion table categorizes the average scores and percentage results.

CHAPTER IV

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

A. Research Findings

This research was conducted online on July 8, 2024, to design a website for learning English, especially using material based on the independent curriculum in class VIII of SMPN 5 Palopo. The data collected came from a questionnaire given to the sample to obtain data related to website design for English language learning. This research uses a 4-D model which goes through 4 stages, namely: (1) Definition, (2) Design (design), (3) development, (4) dissemination. The following is an explanation of each stage in detail:

1. Define

At this stage, the researcher carried out the definition or finding out stage what is needed by distributing a questionnaire totaling 27 questions, and the number of respondents is 18 students. Below, you can see the students' responses to each statement in the questionnaire:

a. Questionnaire results for class VIII students of SMP 5 Palopo

The researcher must collect data to assess student needs and characteristics in determining appropriate material for students in the product. Therefore, researcher distributed a questionnaire with 27 questions to 18 students in class VIII of junior high school 5 Palopo. This questionnaire is characterized by target needs (needs, wants, and lacks). Before the questionnaire was distributed to students, it was validated by a validator, Devi Ismayanti, S.S., M. Hum. The following are the results of the questionnaire validation.

Aspects	Score
Contents	4,33
Scope of the Contents	4,50
Language	5,00
Average Score	4,61

Table 4. 1 The result of the instrument's validation by the expert

After the validator provides validation, the researcher continues with further validation. The step is to distribute a questionnaire via Google Forms. Eighteen students in class VIII of SMP 5 Palopo completed the questionnaire. Details of respondents are presented in the table below.

Gender		Ages
		13		14
Males	Females	M	F	M	F
5	13	5	8	3	2

Table 4. 2 Data of the Respondents

After the researcher collected data from the questionnaire, they investigated the results of each question from 18 students in class VIII of SMP 5 Palopo.

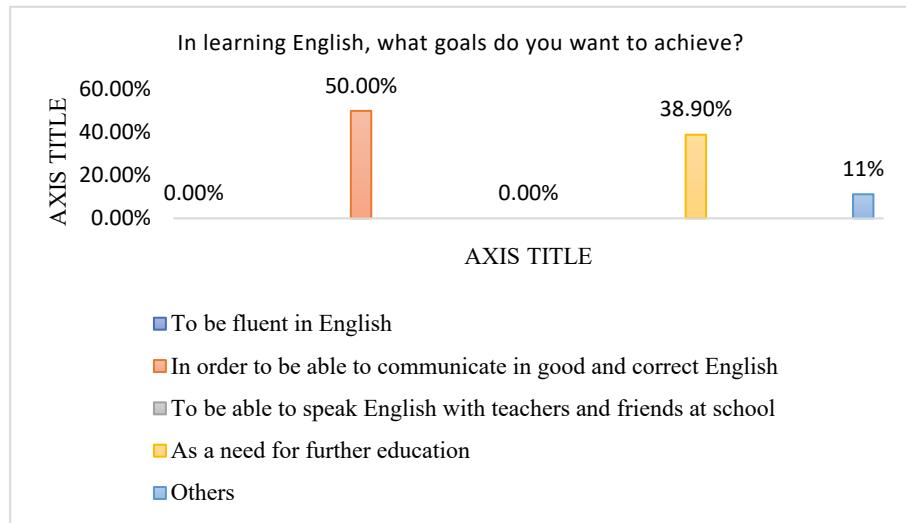

Chart 4.1 The percentage of student goals

The first question is to determine the goals students want to achieve in learning English. The researcher prepared five choices, with the highest vote at point B (to communicate in good and correct English), with a score of 50%. Most students are preparing to continue their studies and discover English at the next level. Additionally, a higher percentage is interested in current research. This means that students are still aware of learning English.

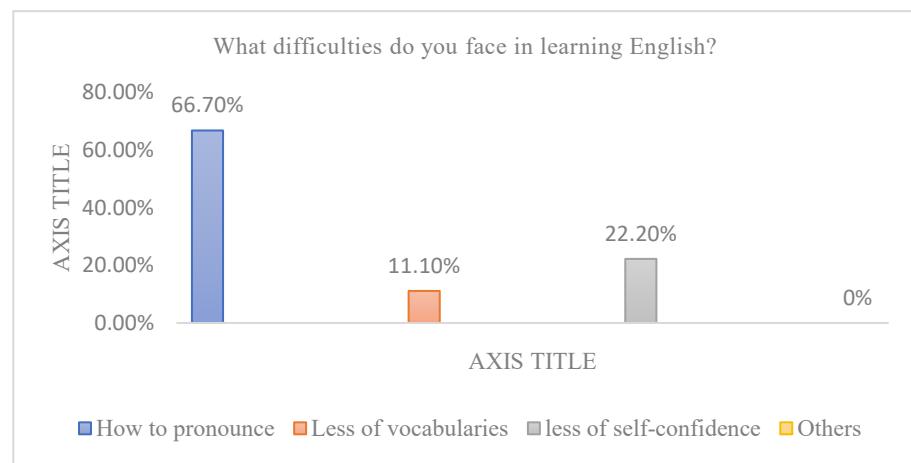

Chart 4.2 Percentages faced by students in learning English

Finding out how hard it is for pupils to learn English is the goal of the second question. According to the graph, four options were prepared. The greatest proportion, 66.7%, concentrated on option A (vocabulary pronunciation issues). This research emphasizes Option A more, showing that children struggle with word pronunciation.

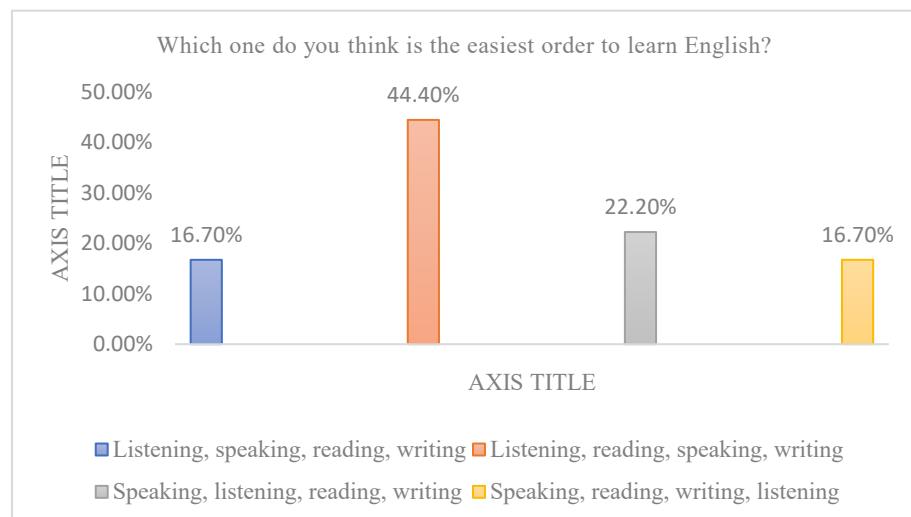

Chart 4.3 Percentage of English learning sequence for students

The next question aims to determine students' interest in learning English language skills. Five options were prepared, which are shown in the chart. The highest percentage focused on option B, 44.4% (listening, reading, speaking, and writing). Option B is more emphasized in this research. This illustrates that students decide to prioritize listening skills in English, followed by reading, speaking, and writing.

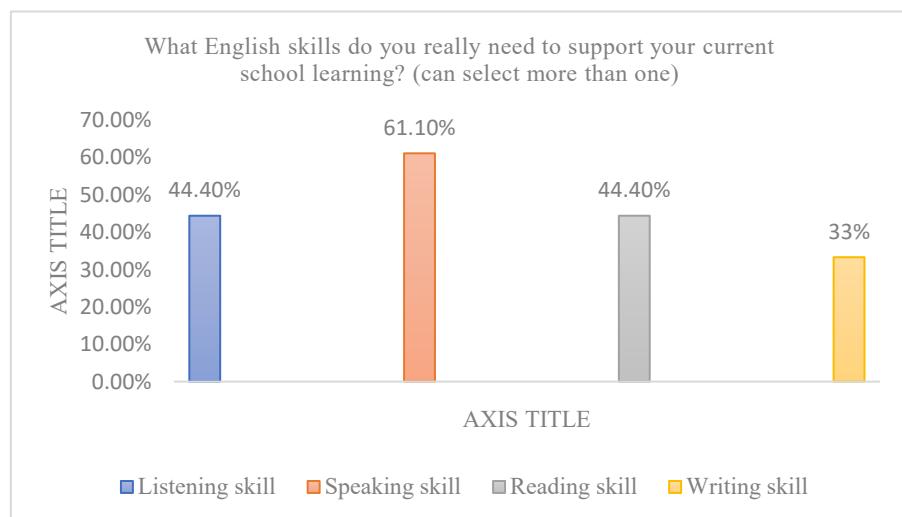

Chart 4.4 Percentage of English skills needed by students

The most important skills for students learning English in school are shown in the chart. Speaking, listening, reading, and writing are the four talents listed in the chart. Additionally, with a percentage point of 61.1%, the graph indicates that option B (speaking skills) was chosen. It can be inferred that pupils prioritize speaking abilities above other abilities. This is corroborated by the independent learning program, which now emphasizes speaking abilities in the English language curriculum for junior high school students.

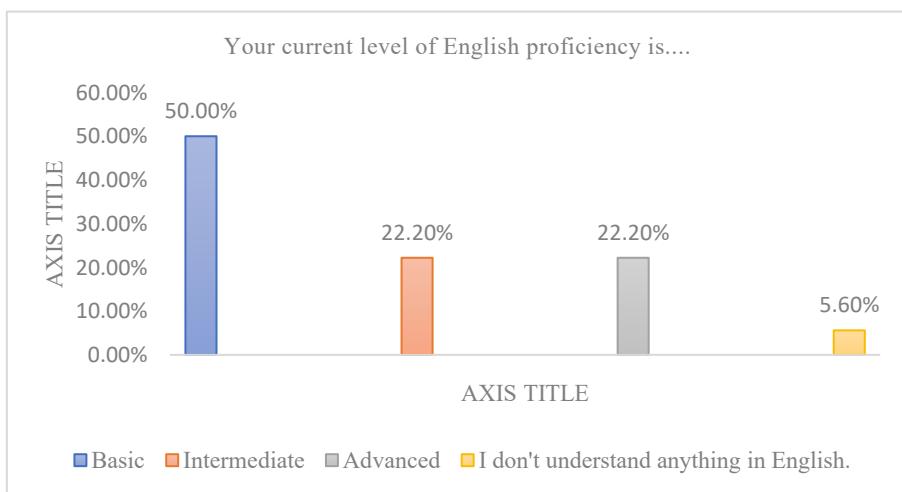

Chart 4.5 Percentage of students' English mastery level

The percentage level of students' English proficiency is displayed in the chart. The chart shows four alternatives. With 50% of the possible points, option A (Basic) has the greatest score. This indicates that the majority of pupils are at the foundational level.

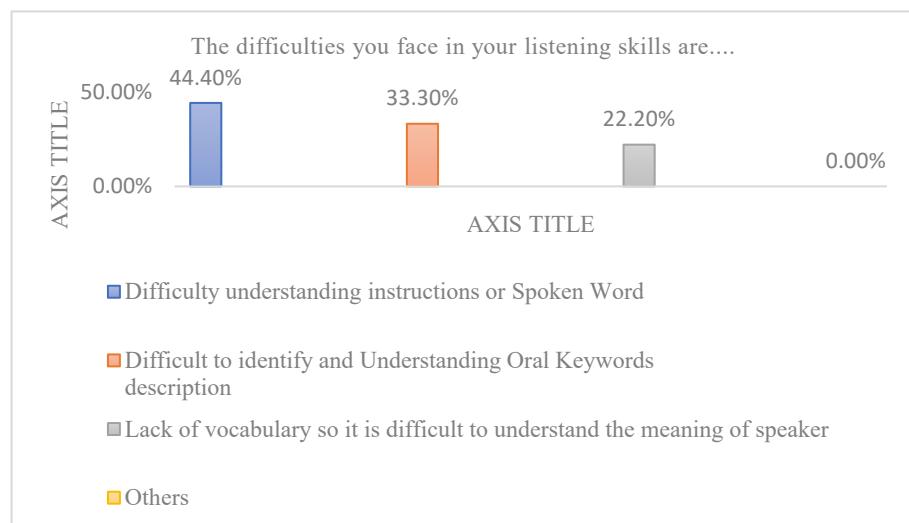

Chart 4.6 Percentage of difficulties faced in Listening skills

The graphic illustrates the listening skills challenges that pupils encounter. With 44.4% points, option A (difficulty understanding spoken words or directions) receives the highest score. The findings clarify that students must listen to spoken language, which might be challenging for them, if they require assistance in comprehending it correctly.

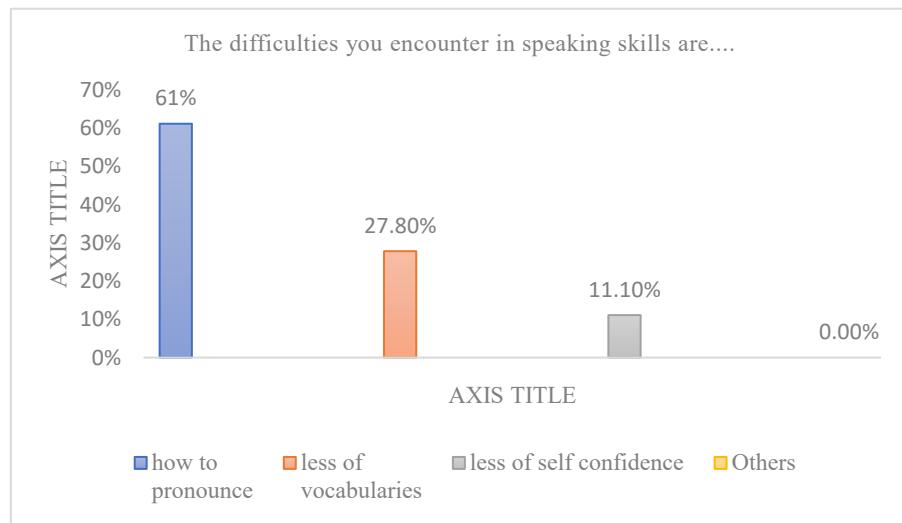

Chart 4.7 Percentage of difficulties faced in speaking skills

The graphic illustrates the challenges that pupils encounter when it comes to speaking abilities. With 61.1% points, Option A (Difficult to pronounce vocabulary) has the highest score. This indicates that children still require assistance with speaking abilities, specifically with word pronunciation.

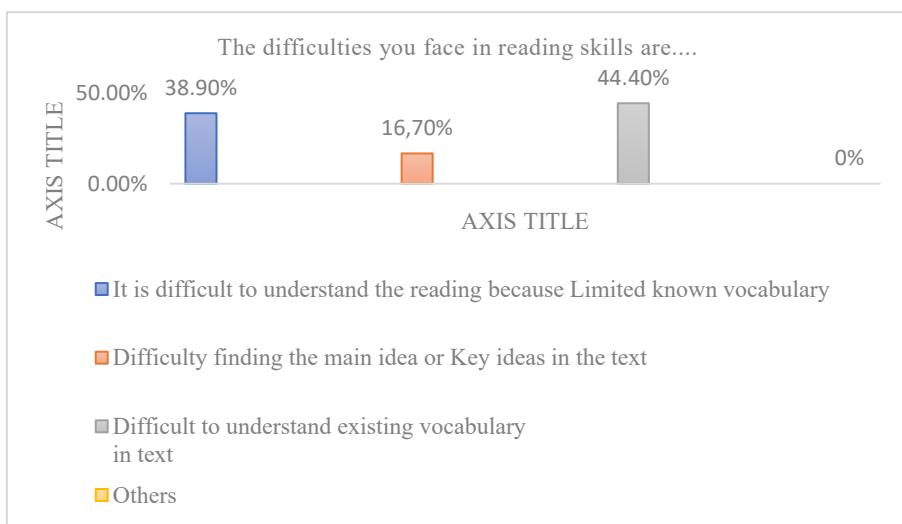

Chart 4.8 Percentage of difficulties faced in Reading skills

The chart above shows students' difficulties with reading skills. The highest score is in option C (Difficult to understand the existing understanding in the text), with a percentage of 44.4%. This means that students do not master vocabulary, so it must be improved.

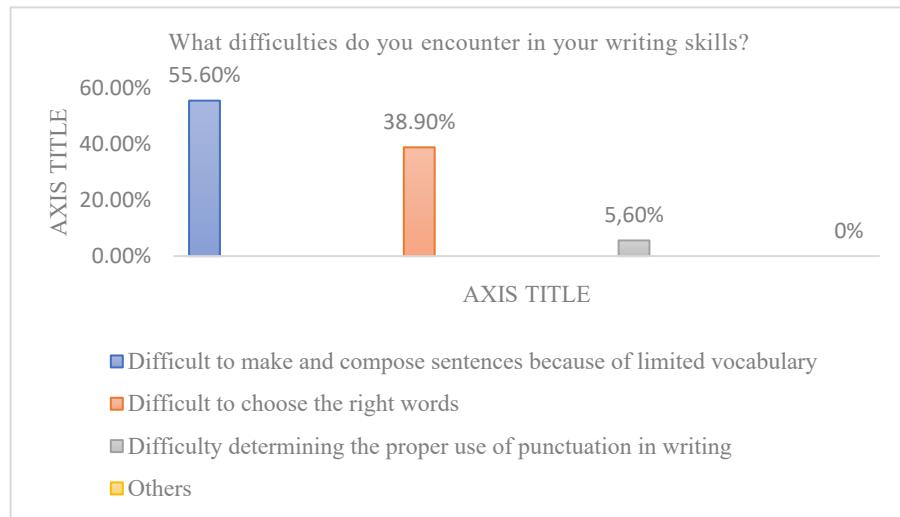

Chart 4.9 Percentage of difficulties encountered in Writing skills

Students' writing challenges are depicted in the chart. With a score of 55.6%, the majority of students select option A (Difficult to compose and arrange sentences because of the limited vocabulary they have).

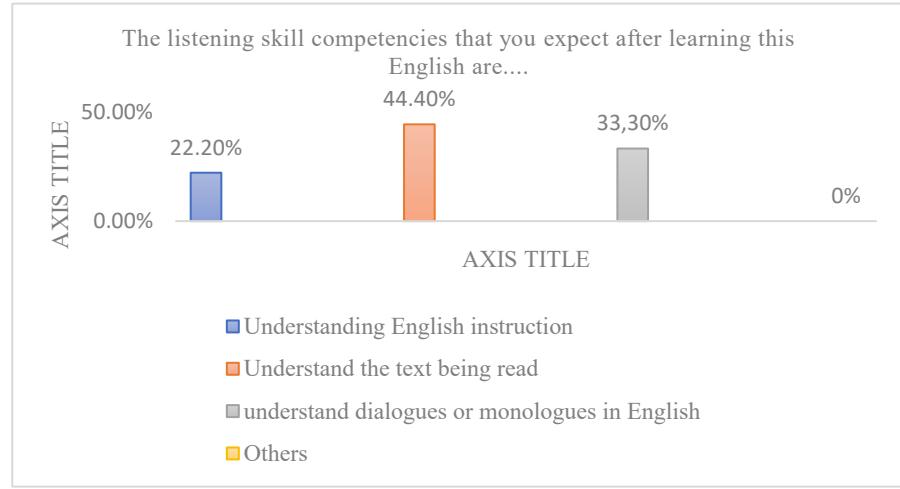

Chart 4.10 Percentage of expected Listening skill competency

The chart provided shows student targets in terms of listening skills. Most students choose to understand the instructions given in English (option B). The proof is in the score for option B, which is 44.4%.

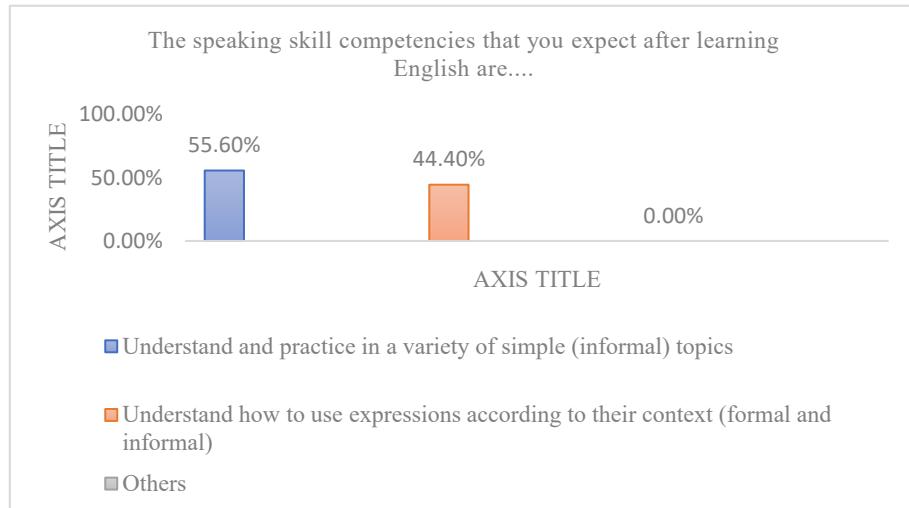

Chart 4.11 Percentage of expected Speaking skill competency

Students' writing challenges are depicted in the chart. With a score of 55.6%, the majority of students select option A (Difficult to compose and arrange sentences because of the limited vocabulary they have).

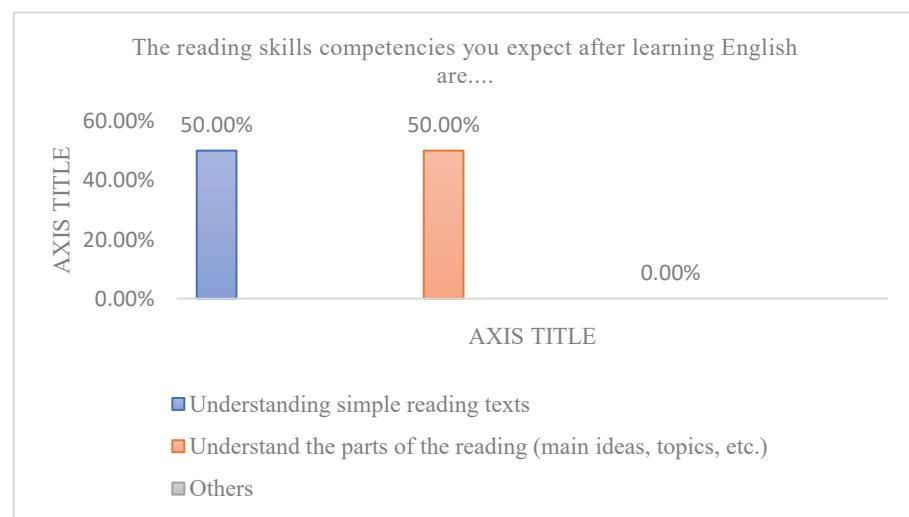

Chart 4.12 Percentage of expected Reading skill competency

The chart shows the percentage of students' reading skills that need improvement. Only two options are shown, with the same percentage score of 50%.

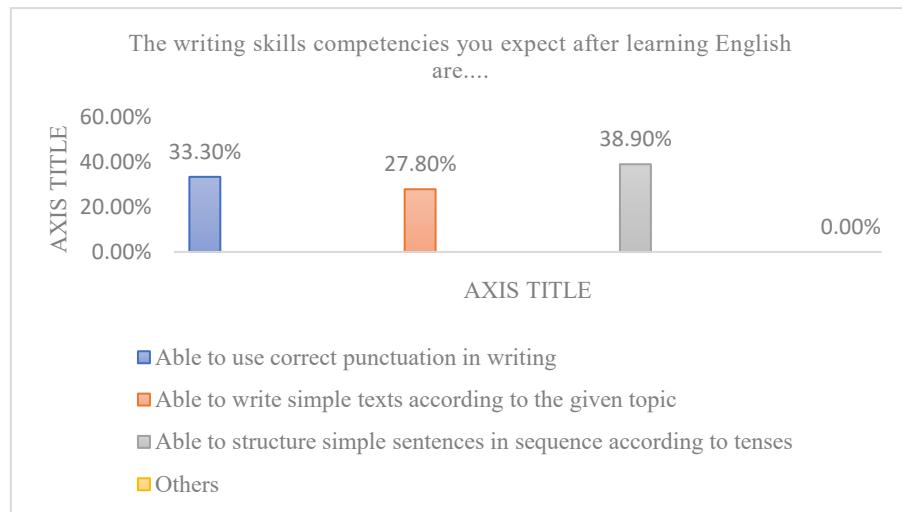

Chart 4.13 Percentage of expected Writing skill competency

As seen in the illustration, option C (able to compose simple sentences sequentially according to tenses) has the highest score (38.9%), indicating that students are unable to write simple texts, which may be due to a lack of vocabulary. The chart displays information about students' writing skills goals.

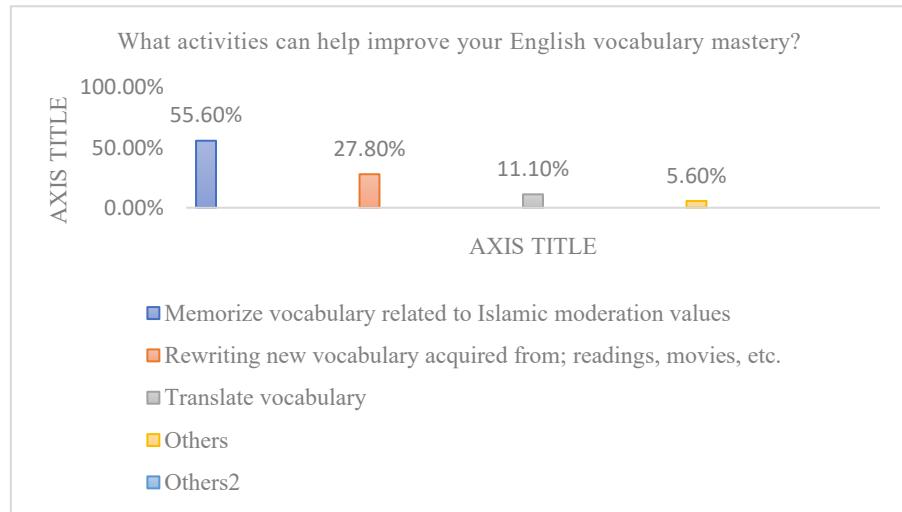

Chart 4.14 Percentage of activities to help students' vocabulary

One exercise that can help kids become more proficient with language is the chart. With a score of 55.6%, Option A (Remember relevant vocabulary with Islamic moderation values) receives the highest score.

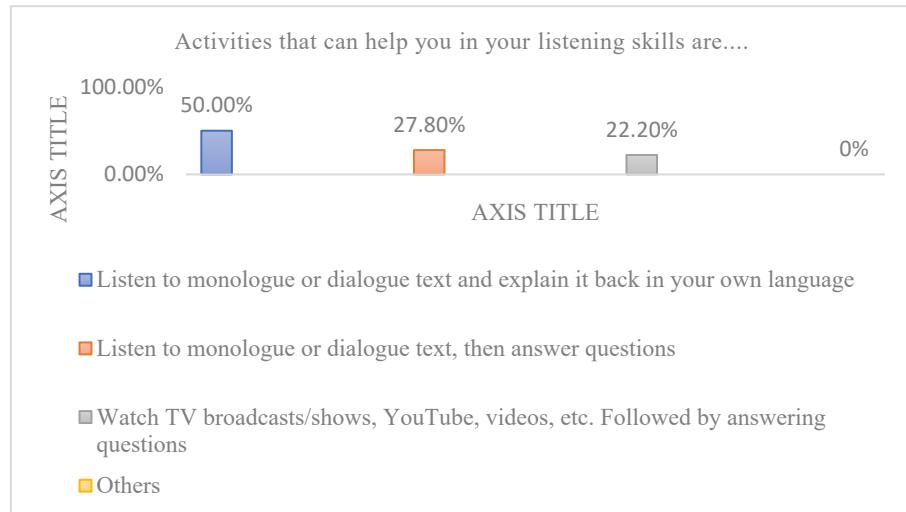

Chart 4.15 Percentage of activities helping Listening skills

Option A has the highest score of 50% in the chart that illustrates the proportion of activities that can improve kids' listening abilities. (Repeating an explanation in one's own tongue after listening to a monologue or dialogue).

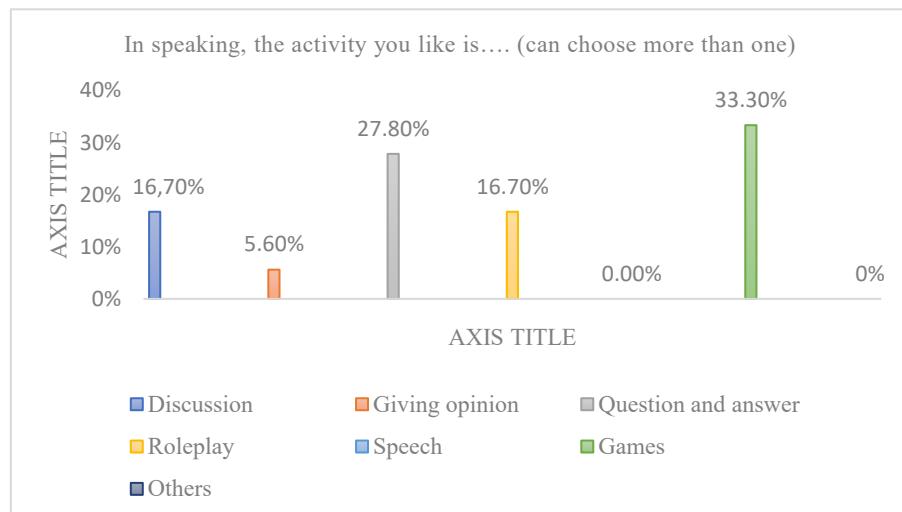

Chart 4.16 Percentage of activities helping Speaking skills

The percentage of activities that students enjoy doing to get better at speaking is displayed in the above chart. Option F (games) has the highest score of 33.3% out of the six alternatives. So, many students enjoy playing games to help them learn English.

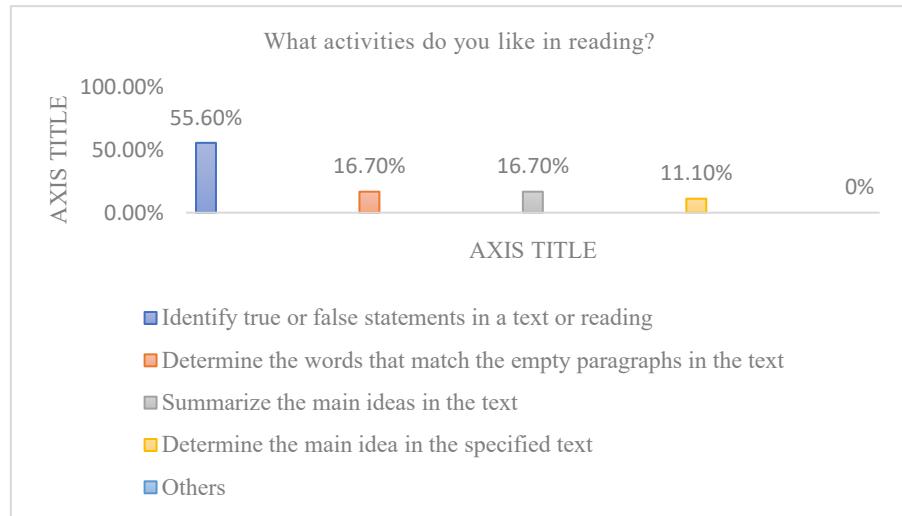

Chart 4.17 Percentage of activities helping Reading skills

In terms of reading skills, the graphic displays the proportion of activities that pupils enjoy. With the highest score of 55.6%, option A outperforms the other four options. Identifying true or false claims in a text or reading is something that many pupils enjoy doing.

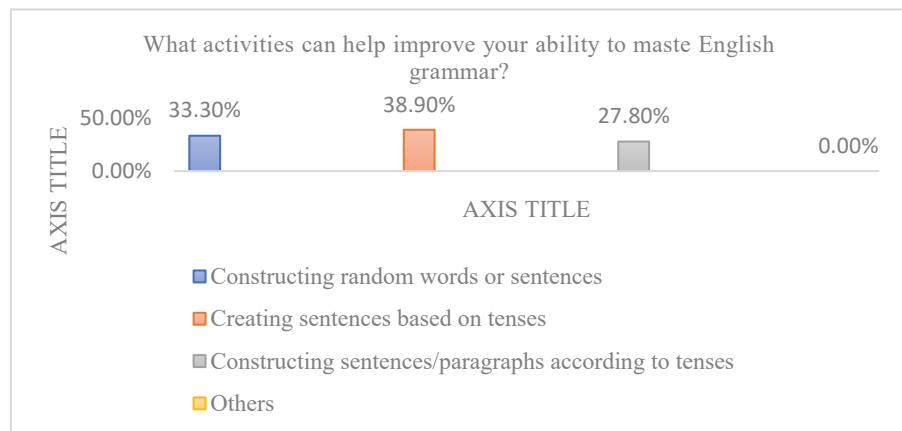

Chart 4.18 Percentage of grammar-helping activities

The percentage of activities that can aid pupils in mastering grammar is displayed in the chart. At 38.9%, Option B has the highest score. Many kids would rather construct phrases using different tenses.

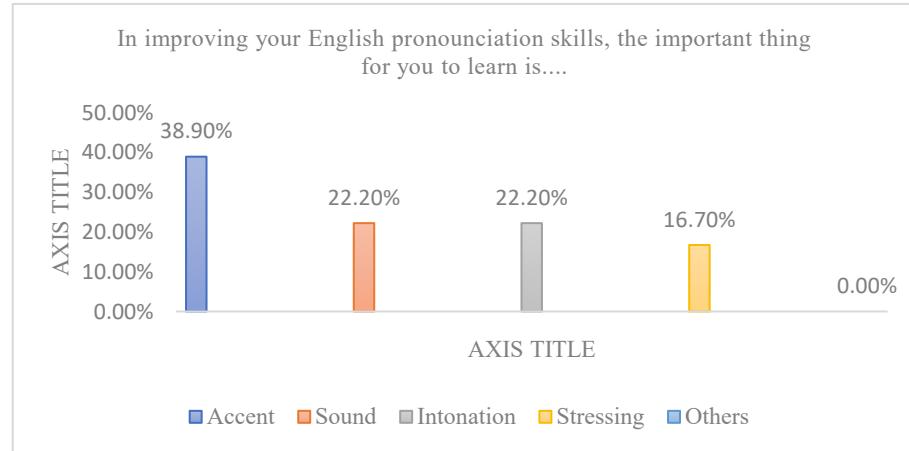

Chart 4.19 Percentage of important pronunciation skills

The key choices for pupils looking to enhance their pronunciation are displayed in the chart. With a 38.9% (accent) score, Option A is the best choice.

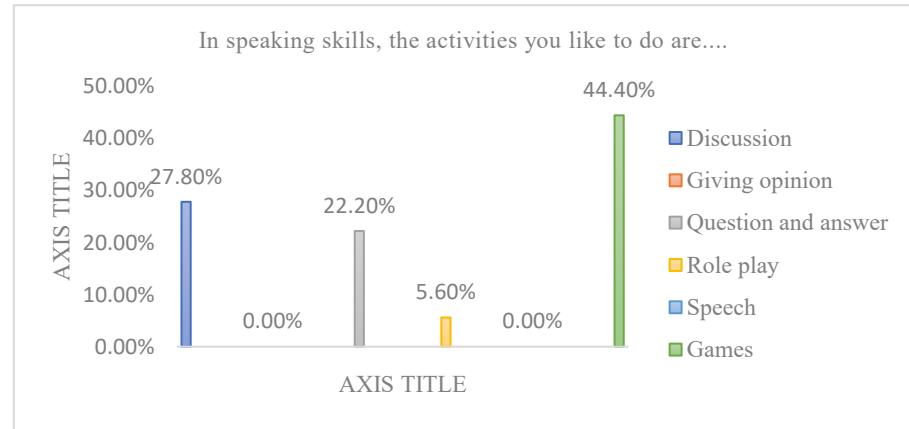

Chart 4.20 Percentage of activities that help with Speaking skills

In the above graphic, the six alternatives are displayed. A score of 44.4% indicates that option F is the best choice for students who wish to get better at kicking. (Instructing through games)

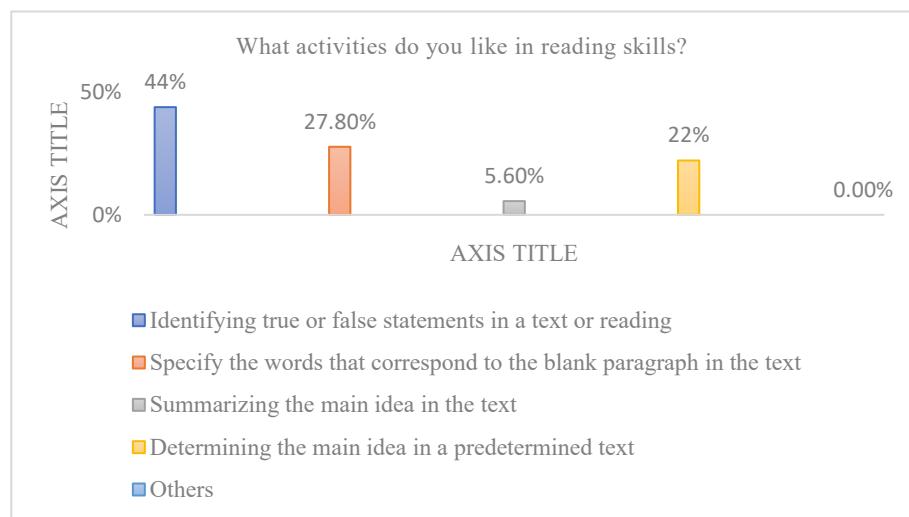

Chart 4.21 Percentage of activities that help with Reading skills

The graph displays the proportion of reading-skill-related activity alternatives that pupils enjoy. Section A, which deals with determining whether claims in a text or reading are true or false, had the highest score of 44.4%.

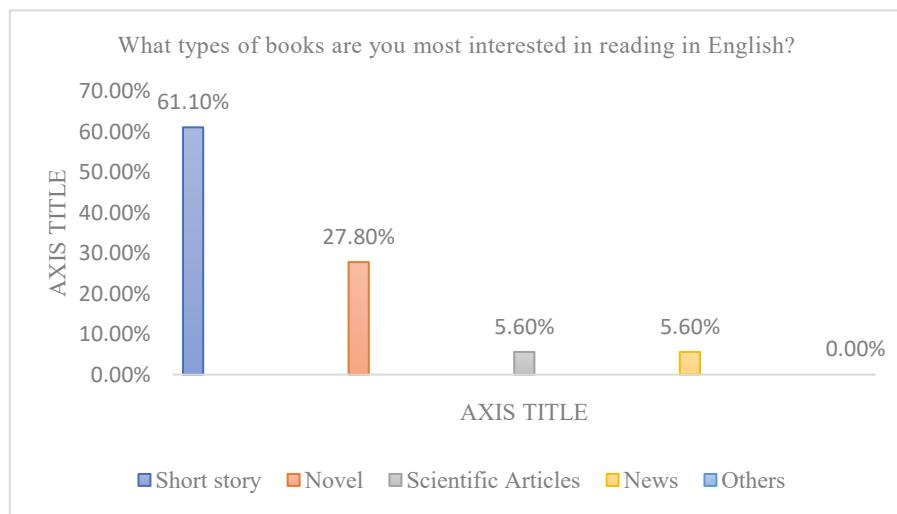

Chart 4.22 Percentage of readings of interest to students

The figure displays the proportion of reading choices that students are interested in for English language learning. With 61.1% of the vote, students prefer Part A (short stories).

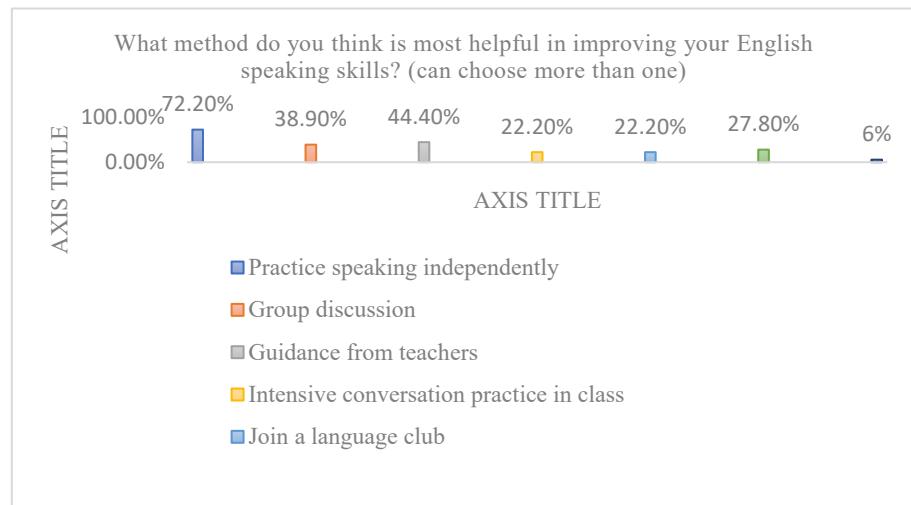

Chart 4.23 Percentage of methods that improve speaking skills

The percentage of strategies that assist pupils in developing their speaking abilities is displayed in the diagram. With a score of 72.2% (practising speaking independently), option A has the greatest score. Students can learn anywhere with the researcher's website.

The platform required for pupils to learn English at school is shown in the chart. The chart lists six platforms, including the websites for YouTube, Chrome, Google Translate, TikTok, and Instagram. Additionally, the graph indicates that option D (Website) was selected with 33.3% of the total points. Students also require YouTube and Google Translate for learning, with a 27.8% usage rate. Therefore, it may be said that a website is necessary for students to learn. An English teacher interviewed for the article backed this idea, stating that in order for pupils to learn English, they must use technology through websites.

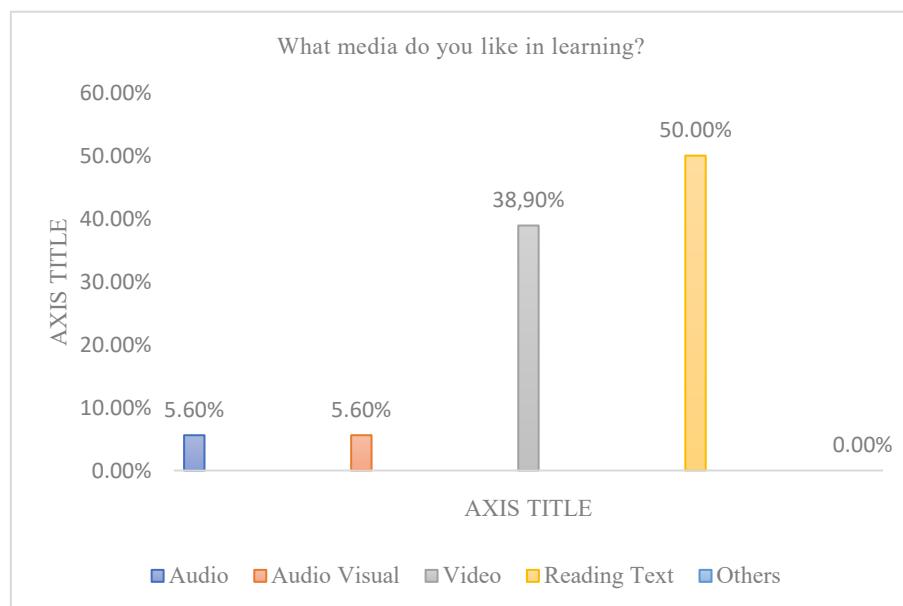

Chart 4.25 Percentage of learning media favoured by students

Students' preferred media for learning English is displayed in the graph. Four possibilities are prepared in the graphic. Option D, which has the greatest score of 50%, and option C, which has the highest score of 38.9%, will be featured in the product. Thus, the planned website will have educational films in addition to text reading.

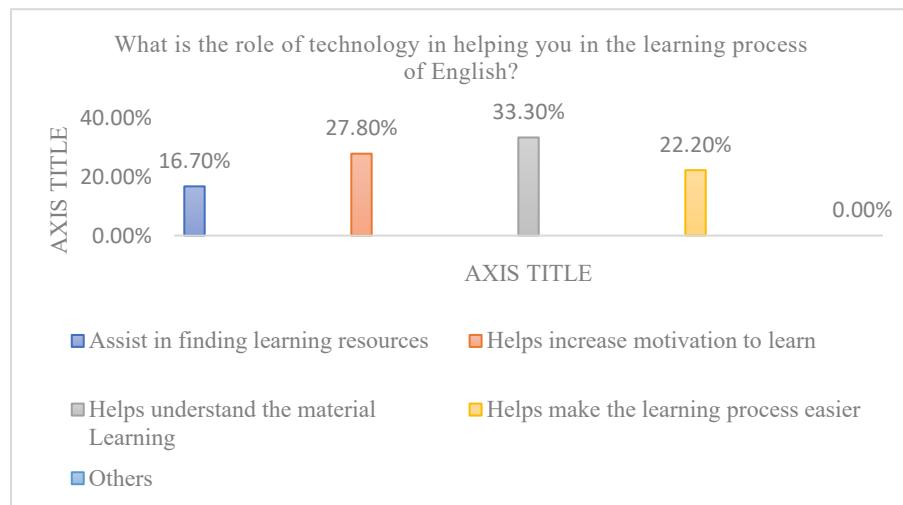

Chart 4.26 Percentage of the role of technology in learning

The function of technology in English language learning is explained in the chart. As a consequence, option C (Helps understand the material learned) received the highest score from students—33.3%. We may conclude that students who use technology in the form of websites are more motivated to learn, which in turn helps them become more proficient in English.

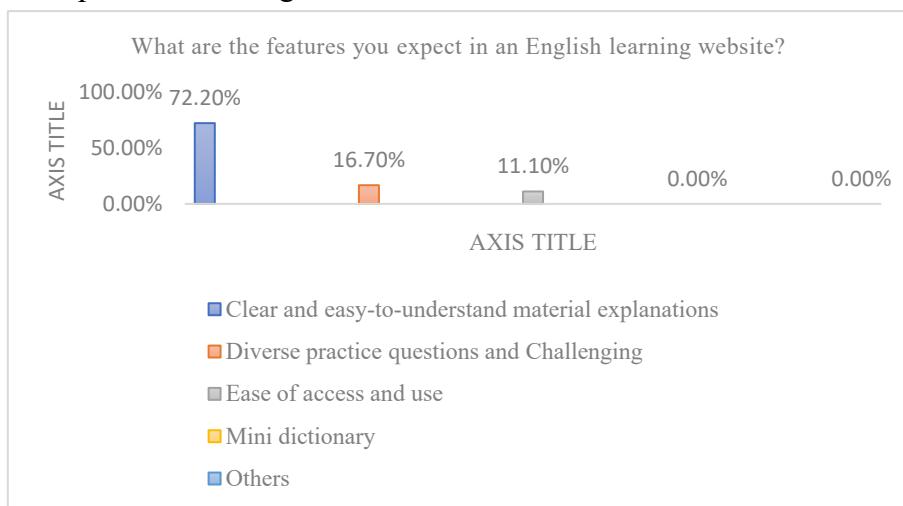

Chart 4.27 Percentage of expected features on the website

The aforementioned graphic displays the proportion of items that students anticipate seeing on a website for English language instruction.

There are four alternatives in the chart. The visual findings show that students expect easy-to-understand explanations of the topic (option A), as indicated by 72.2% of students.

2. Design

Data collected during the analysis phase is used to design new products.

At this stage, the researcher produces products in learning media and instruments to validate the design. In this phase, researcher design their websites using Google Sites. The website has a header, content, footer, share link, material menu, video menu, dictionary menu, and practice menu to meet students' needs in learning English.

This is the appearance of the Macca website design:

The image shows a screenshot of a website designed for English language learners, specifically focusing on daily routines and grammar. The top navigation bar includes links for 'HOME', 'ABOUT', 'CONTACT', 'LOGOUT', and 'DRAFT'. Below this, there's a search bar and a user profile icon.

Daily Routine Section:

- Header: Daily Routine
- Text: Daily routines atau rutinitas harian merupakan rangkaian aktivitas yang dilakukan secara berulang setiap hari. Aktivitas yang dilakukan mulai dari bangun tidur, mandi, sarapan, pergi ke sekolah, olahraga, beribadah, mengerjakan tugas, dan lain seterusnya.
- Learning Objectives: Tujuan Pembelajaran
 - Students can describe daily routine activities using English appropriately.
 - Students can use various tenses (simple present tense, past tense, future tense) in the context of telling daily activities.
 - Students can improve their English speaking, reading, writing and listening skills.
- Grammar: Tata Bahasa
- Simple Present Tense: (digunakan untuk menyatakan kebiasaan atau aktivitas yang rutin dilakukan.)

3. Develop

In the development stage, the researcher developed a product prototype in the form of an English learning website. This product contains a web title, learning materials, YouTube videos about learning materials, audio listening, an exercise menu accompanied by images, and a mini dictionary to increase vocabulary. In line with Wiraldi's research, the element that needs to be owned in learning English is vocabulary because vocabulary can connect or organize ideas in sentences, so many students are still confused when they are asked to translate certain words, sentences, and texts.²³

Furthermore, the result of developing chapters can be seen in the table below.

Chapter I: Daily Routine
Learning Objectives:
<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Students can describe daily routine activities using English appropriately.2. b. The revision draft of the Macca website

After conducting expert validation, the researcher received several revisions from experts. The revisions aimed to improve the design of this website design. Furthermore, the corrections from the experts are presented as follows:

a) Material

Expert Suggests that the website be developed by providing more vocabulary to cover the content of the material and also provide captions in each part of the audio recording.

b) Language

The linguist suggested that the researcher consistently choose words and elements that are appropriate and suitable for the material.

c) Design and Layout

Design and layout expert validator said that the display is suitable for opening on devices such as laptops, tablets, or cellphones; in other words, the Macca website is responsive. However, the validator suggested using a menu to facilitate navigation on the page.

4. Disseminated

The researcher was conducted with students of SMPN 5 Palopo. At this stage, the researcher disseminated the product and explained how to use the website to students and teacher, especially for English subjects. This activity was held on October 10, 2024, in class VIII. At this stage, the researcher socialized the product used at SMPN 5 Palopo.

The researcher conducted interviews using Indonesian to assess student representatives, as many as 15 students, regarding the website developed. From the results of these interviews, the researcher could conclude that 13 out of 15 students felt that the website developed was feasible to use in teaching. 2 other students said the website design was very interesting. Still, the material needed to be clarified again regarding the instructions in the material. The following is a video of the researcher and student interviews in the classroom

B. Discussion

Students and English teachers at Junior High School 5 Palopo require web-based learning media to supplement their English learning program because the use of learning media remains ineffective as teachers continue to rely on textbooks and worksheets. This product is designed to meet the requirements and expectations of the pupils, which can be identified through a needs analysis. The researcher discovered that this product may benefit pupils and English teachers. As a result, this study creates a website-based learning resource titled "Designing Macca Website Basic English Learning for Junior High School".

This research employs the 4D model (define, design, develop, and disseminate). During the defining step, researcher did a requirements analysis utilizing Hutchinson and Waters' (1987) theory, which categorizes needs as essentials, lacks, and wants.²⁴ The needs analysis revealed that students and teachers desired teaching media resources to help implement English language learning at junior high school 5 Palopo. Following the completion of the needs analysis, the researcher thoroughly reviewed and constructed the website's content, which contained material subjects, learning objectives, videos, audio, and a variety of other elements. As a result, the researcher decided to develop a website.

After collecting the results of the analysis of student needs, the researcher took the next step, namely designing a product. Products are created based on students' needs, wants, and lacks, as indicated after they answer a questionnaire. This step uses the information collected by the researcher, who then analyzes it to determine whether the material is appropriate for the student's level.

After creating the English learning website, the next stage was to create it with the assistance of a professional assessment. The experts evaluated the original product using a questionnaire. Three professionals assessed the website and provided feedback on its design. This expert review is intended to guarantee that the product is ready for use. As a result, the validation of the English learning website by design and layout professionals achieved very high qualifications. Linguists' validation results were quite good, as were the qualifications of material specialists. To summarize, this website can be used with small changes, such as a more appealing design, layout, and improved content. Following that, the researcher conducted dissemination through interviews to determine students' perceptions of the website and whether it was appropriate for use. As a consequence, the website was visually appealing. The materials, typefaces, colours, and layout of the website were acceptable to the pupils. Following the distribution stage, the findings of this classification suggest that the online learning media is suitable for grade VIII students at SMPN 5 Palopo and can be a medium that helps enhance their English language.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The researcher used a 4-D model to design this website. The first step is to define; the researcher analyzes the needs of students related to the product, which will be determined using a questionnaire. The second step is design; the researcher designs a website-based English learning media product based on data and the results of the student needs analysis. The next step is development; the researcher gives the product to material experts and website development experts to be validated and gets suggestions for product improvement from validation experts by writing website components and revising them into a final product draft. The last step is dissemination; the final product of the website-based English learning media is ready to be used and distributed to class VIII students at SMPN 5 Palopo.

B. Suggestion

Based on these conclusions, the researcher would like to provide suggestions to students, English teachers, and other carr.

1. For the Students

Students can use this website to improve their understanding of English learning.

2. For the English Teacher

English teachers recommend using the website as a supporting medium in teaching English.

3. For Further Researchers

It is hoped that further researchers can develop English learning websites that are more complex than the current website to help teachers and students in teaching and learning.
