Title of Your paper: As the World Turns: Men Left Behind Due to the International Migration in Indonesia
Original Contribution : Studies of women's migration have generally focused on two important elements, namely their economic contributions and their experiences as migrant workers (particularly the abuses that occur during migration and employment). Few studies have focused on men, particularly those who are left behind by migrant workers. This article explores the social processes experienced by men as a consequence of women's mobility and ability to work abroad. Through its examination of the male perspective, this article emphasizes the need to understand migration as part of broader social transformation
