ABSTRACT

Abdul Muthalib, 2025. "Developing English Camp Handbook for Students at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo." Thesis of English Language Education Study Program, Faculty of Tarbiyah and Teacher Training, Universitas Islam Negeri Palopo. Supervised by Husnaini and Fadhliyah Rahmah Muin.

This research was motivated by the lack of effective and engaging English learning materials used during the English Camp at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. The primary issue identified was the ineffectiveness of handouts and worksheets, which were difficult to use and lacked clear structure. Therefore, the objective of this study was to develop an appropriate English Camp handbook that supports English language learning particularly speaking skills and vocabulary acquisition while integrating Islamic values to reflect the institution's identity. The research employed a Research and Development (R&D) approach using the 4-D model (Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate) proposed by Thiagarajan, Semmel, and Semmel. The study was conducted at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo from June 20 to 22, 2024, involving 15 student participants in the English Camp program. Data were collected through questionnaires, interviews, field observations, and expert validation. The instruments were designed to assess students' needs and evaluate the quality of the developed handbook. Data analysis combined qualitative (descriptive) and quantitative methods to evaluate responses and validation scores. The final product was a handbook comprising five units, including vocabulary enrichment, expressions, core materials, and interactive tasks. Expert validation indicated a high level of feasibility with an average score of 97%. Student responses during the dissemination phase were highly positive, indicating that the handbook was engaging, well-structured, and effective in improving their English proficiency. Thus, the product is considered suitable for implementation in future English Camp programs.

ABSTRAK

Abdul Muthalib, 2025. "Pengembangan Buku Panduan English Camp untuk Siswa di Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo." Skripsi Program Studi Pendidikan Bahasa Inggris, Fakultas Tarbiyah dan Ilmu Keguruan, Universitas Islam Negeri Palopo. Dibimbing oleh Husnaini and Fadhliyah Rahmah Muin.

Penelitian ini dilatarbelakangi oleh kurangnya media pembelajaran bahasa Inggris yang efektif dan menarik yang digunakan selama kegiatan English Camp di Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. Permasalahan utama yang ditemukan adalah ketidakefektifan penggunaan handout dan lembar kerja yang sulit digunakan serta tidak memiliki struktur yang jelas. Oleh karena itu, tujuan dari penelitian ini adalah untuk mengembangkan buku panduan English Camp yang sesuai dan dapat mendukung pembelajaran bahasa Inggris, khususnya dalam keterampilan berbicara dan penguasaan kosakata dengan mengintegrasikan nilai-nilai Islam untuk mencerminkan identitas lembaga. Penelitian ini menggunakan metode Research and Development (R&D) dengan model 4-D (Define, Design, Develop, dan Disseminate) yang dikemukakan oleh Thiagarajan, dan Semmel. Penelitian dilaksanakan di Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo pada tanggal 20 hingga 22 Juni 2024. Subjek penelitian adalah 15 siswa yang mengikuti kegiatan English Camp. Data dikumpulkan melalui angket, wawancara, observasi lapangan, dan validasi ahli. Instrumen dirancang untuk menganalisis kebutuhan siswa serta menilai kualitas buku panduan yang dikembangkan. Teknik analisis data menggabungkan metode kualitatif (deskriptif) dan kuantitatif untuk mengevaluasi tanggapan serta skor validasi. Hasil dari penelitian ini adalah sebuah buku panduan yang terdiri dari lima unit, dengan isi mencakup pengayaan kosakata, ungkapan, materi utama, dan tugas interaktif. Validasi ahli menunjukkan kelayakan yang sangat baik dengan persentase rata-rata sebesar 97%. Siswa memberikan tanggapan yang positif selama tahap penyebaran yang menunjukkan bahwa buku panduan tersebut menarik, terstruktur dengan baik, dan bermanfaat dalam meningkatkan kemampuan bahasa Inggris mereka. Oleh karena itu, produk ini layak untuk diimplementasikan dalam program English Camp di masa mendatang.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

English Camp is one of the alternative way for an educational institution to improve students' English skills. According to Mustakim and Ismail English Camp is an effective method to enhance students' speaking skills. ¹Through this activity students are taught several materials that can improve English skills such as speaking skills, listening skills, reading skills, and writing skills. English camp will be a good activity that can effectively develop students' language learning. English camps provide a unique opportunity for participants to use English authentically. ² This activity provides a good opportunity for students to use English in several situations.

In the learning process, English camp is commonly done outdoors in order to create a more diverse and fun learning atmosphere.³ English is taught through various activities, games, singing, etc. If students learn with games, have fun, feel happy and free, it means you have achieved the goal. In addition, games also strengthen language skills, students develop social skills and good relationships as they interact with each other, students can gain new knowledge and experience.

Another thing that is very important in English camp activities is learning media which is an important element in English Camp activities to support an effective and fun teaching and learning process. One of the commonly used learning media is handouts and worksheets. Handouts generally contain data for specific areas or specialized techniques.⁴ Handouts contain learning materials that are concise and easy to understand, while worksheets contain practice questions or activities to apply the material that has been learned. Although handouts and worksheets have their own benefits, the use of handbooks is more essential in English Camp. The handbook serves as the main guide for students, containing complete information about the program, learning materials, activity schedules, and applicable rules.

In the English camp held by Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo in collaboration with the English Education Study Program of IAIN Palopo which was held from June 20 to June 22, 2024 at Labombo Beach and this activity was attended by all levels of students at the Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo, namely the Junior High School and Senior High School levels. Researcher conducted observations and interviews with students about the learning media used during the activities. From the results of observations and interviews, researcher knows that the media used during the learning process are handouts and worksheets. In the observation process, researcher saw the ineffectiveness of using handouts and worksheets to survive the learning process. Some of the reasons that researcher knows based on the results of observations and interviews are; the display of handouts and worksheets is very small so it is difficult for students to pay attention to the handouts provided. The handouts provided by the English camp committee are still in a form that cannot be used immediately, where tutors must first cut the papers that become handouts and worksheets so that the process of providing material is slow and some material is not given to students. There are also some grammatical errors in some materials on handouts and worksheets.

Based on the observation, the researcher wants to develop a handbook that will be used in the next English Camp activities of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo where the author wants to develop existing material and also add new material where the handbook that the author developed focus on improving speaking skills and increasing the vocabulary of students who take part in English Camp activities. And also the researcher designed this handbook as an implementation of the collaboration of the English Education study program of IAIN Palopo with Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo to develop students' English development programs.

To be more detailed, each handbook material can be relevant to the topic. It is important that the handbook materials integrate the four English skills into each topic. Referring to this explanation and realizing the facts above, the researcher wants to conduct a research entitled Developing English Camp Handbook for Students at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

B. Research Question

Based on the background above, the main problem is the development of a handbook for English camp in developing students' English language ability. For this reason, the researcher needs to elaborate on the main problem. The research problems formulated as follow:

"What is the appropriate of English camp handbook for students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo?"

C. Research Objective

This research aim at developing English Camp handbook for students at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. The specific objective of this research is to develop the appropriate English camp handbook for students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

D. Research Significances

1. Theoretically

The theoretical significance of this research is to support Murphy's, Redding and Twyman theory stated that a handbook is a collection of information covering specific subjects in a particular field.⁵ Based on the theory Researcher can develop an English camp handbook that can be used by students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo so that in the next English camp activities the material and learning process can run well and fun.

 $^{^5}$ Murphy, M., Redding, S., & Twyman, J. (Eds.). (2016). Handbook on personalized learning for states, districts, and schools. IAP.

2. Practically

This research is very useful for students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students and tutors who would present material in English camp activities. Firstly, for the students who will take part in the english camp activities later, in the future the results of this research can help and facilitate students who take part in the english camp in understanding the material, especially the materials that would be in the english camp handbook. In the future, researcher hope that the results of this research in the form of a handbook can be very useful for the English camp of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

Secondly, for tutors; the product developed in this research is a handbook that can facilitate tutors in presenting materials for students who participate in the English camp. Third, the researcher hopes that the products from this study can be used by Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo for sustainable English camp activities.

E. Product Specification

A handbook is a collection of diverse information organized in a concise and practical format, typically focused on a specific field—for example, a physics handbook.⁶ The handbook developed by the researcher aims to help students to more easily understand the material that presented by the tutor. The handbook would be used by students during the English camp. As for the contents of the hanbook that would be developed by researcher in the form of English learning materials.

The handbook developed by the researcher is based on the needs analysis that has been conducted. The content of the handbook includes learning materials, relevant expressions, and various tasks designed to enhance student engagement. In addition to focusing on language development, the handbook also integrates Islamic themes, considering that the research was conducted in an Islamic educational institution. This integration aims to align the language learning process with the values and identity of the institution. A handbook for an English camp can be effective in improving students' English language skills, particularly in speaking and reading.

F. Research Delimitation

Delimitation helps researcher limit the scope of the research, so that the focus becomes clear and in-depth. With proper delimitation, researcher can avoid duplicating other studies and discover new, more useful breakthroughs. Delimitation of this research were:

- The researcher chose the development of the English Camp Handbook as the focus of the study.
- 2. The material used in the English Camp handbook that would be made is the basics in English.
- 3. Students' learning outcomes would be evaluated through the use of the handbook

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Previous Research Findings

This research would present a review of related research that has been conducted, detailing the results obtained in the context of this research as follows:

The first research is by Sahraini and Hartina in her article entitled "Developing English Material for Early Childhood Education Students at the Faculty of Education and Teacher Training in Islamic Higher Education, Indonesia". This research used an R&D design, integrating analyzed knowledge into a practical product for school implementation (Borg and Gall). It followed the Hannifen and Peck Design Model and the ESP curriculum design model. This research focused on the development of English language materials suitable for Early Childhood Education Program students. The development process involved needs analysis, material grid development, material organization, expert assessment, second draft trial, material evaluation and revision, and final draft writing. The developed materials were found to be suitable for the students' needs and approved for use in the program. This study emphasizes the importance of tailoring English materials to the specific needs of students in different study programs. This research is in accordance with the focus of the researcher's research which wants to develop the material in the English camp handbook based on the results of the student needs analysis.

⁷ Sahraini, Hartina "Developing English Material for Early Childhood Education Students at the Faculty of Education and Teacher Training in Islamic Higher Education, Indonesia", 2020, Vol. 27 Issue No. 4.1, pp: 309-320.

The second research are Susanto, Hobri, and Nugrahaningsih in their article entitled "Developing a Handbook on Multimedia Integration in Mathematics Teaching for Indonesian Primary School Students". This study used the R&D approach. The handbook in this study serves as a guide that provides information and instructions on teaching mathematics, as well as a reference source for classroom interaction. The handbook also integrates multimedia content that emphasizes technology, science, and engineering as the basis of expertise. The validation results from the expert panel showed that the multimedia materials developed by the researcher were valid in terms of content and functionality. In addition, the handbook was also used as a tool to collect data from mathematics teachers and elementary school students.

The third is by Anggaraeni in her article entitled "Developing Vocabulary Handbook for the Eighth Grade Students of Junior High School". The study focused on developing a comprehensive vocabulary handbook for eighth-grade students at a junior high school using the ADDIE model and Task-Based Language Teaching (TBLT) approach, aiming to create a pedagogically sound, engaging, and effective resource. Comprising three units of vocabulary material with various activities designed to reinforce vocabulary in context, the handbook catered to different learning styles and encouraged interaction, critical thinking, and practical application. It was rigorously validated by a panel of education and linguistics experts, whose feedback helped refine its content and structure. Subsequent classroom testing with students and teachers yielded overwhelmingly positive results, showing significant improvements in vocabulary acquisition and engagement. Teachers appreciated the structured yet flexible framework, while students enjoyed the stimulating activities that increased their motivation to learn. Overall, the study demonstrated that the ADDIE model and TBLT approach combined to produce a valuable resource for enhancing vocabulary learning in junior high school settings.

The next research is by Ikhsan, Husnaini, and Masruddin in their article entitled "Implementation of Weekly English Program with Fun Learning Method for Pesantren Students". ¹⁰ This research is a descriptive qualitative research. This article discusses the implementation of a weekly English program with a fun learning method for Pesantren students in Indonesia. The program aims to improve human resources and the competitiveness of the people of Morowali Regency through mastery of foreign languages. The article describes the preparation, implementation, and monitoring of the program, as well as the training provided to teachers. The results show that the program is helpful for teachers and supports the English learning of the students. The article emphasizes the importance of creating a fun and enjoyable learning atmosphere for students.

The last research is by Andini in her thesis entitled "Developing Students

Basic English Handbook for Freshmen English Language Education Study

¹⁰ Iksan, Husnaini, and Masruddin, "Implementation of Weekly English Program with Fun Learning Method for Pesantren Students", 2022, Vol. 9, No. 2, pp: 872-879.

Program of IAIN Palopo". This research focuses on developing a Basic English Handbook for freshmen in the English Language Education Study Program at IAIN Palopo. English Language Education students require resources to enhance their English skills. The goal of this research is to create a suitable Basic English Handbook for freshmen and to assess their response to it. The research follows the R&D method using the ADDIE model (Analysis, Design, Development, Implementation, and Evaluation). Conducted at IAIN Palopo on August 23, 2023, the study involved 15 students from the BIG B class of 2022. Quantitative data were gathered from questionnaires, while qualitative data were obtained from documentation and student observations. A needs analysis and perception survey regarding the handbook were conducted by the researcher. The students' perception score was 4.5, categorized as "very good." The try-out involved 15 respondents. Expert validation and student feedback indicated that the handbook's content, design, and layout were engaging and met the students' needs, wants, and lacks. This suggests the developed Basic English Handbook is suitable for freshmen.

Based on the previous research above, this research has similarities in developing materials, handbooks and fun learning of English camp. The difference is that the material developed by researcher is material that would be give to all students levels at Muhammadiyah boarding school Palopo while in previous studies developing materials for early childhood education and developing handbooks for Multimedia Integration in Mathematics Teaching. Furthermore, in this study researcher developed a handbook for the English camp SMA Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo which used in developing students' English language skills

B. Some Pertinent Ideas

1. Handbook

a. Definition of Handbook

A handbook is a type of reference work that provides ready-to-use information. It may contain facts about a subject, guidance on a job, instructions for operating a machine, or information for travelers. A handbook can be considered equivalent to a guidebook or what is often called a manual, which focuses on conveying information about a particular subject or topic 12. According to Mustafa and Saleh, they argue that a handbook is a collection of factual information on a particular issue or subject. 13 Sulistiyo-Basuki explains that a handbook can be considered as a collection of various types of information summarized in a comprehensive and ready-to-use manner, especially in one particular field. 14

a. Kinds of Handbook

Handbooks has many kinds which are commonly used as guides for certain scientific fields, some kinds of handbooks are as follows:

1. General Handbook

The first handbook is U.S. Children's Bureau. Handbook For Recreation.¹⁵ This book contains various games, dances, music, and stories for storytelling, among other things. It is particularly useful for non-professional recreation leaders responsible for group activities. The book also includes an index for titles and Last is Handbook Of Adult Education In The United States. Chicago, Adult Education Association of the USA. 16 This book contains survey articles by specialists in various aspects and fields of adult education. It includes a directory of institutions and organizations, with detailed informati an index for games and activities.

2. Specialized Handbook

The first is American Institute of Architects. Handbook Of Architectural Practice.¹⁷ This book includes sections on buildings and architecture (elements, qualifications, organizations, ethics, laws, and other issues related to the profession). It covers office procedures, project procedures, and appendices (with various forms, a list of building organizations, and a bibliography).

¹⁶ Knowles, Malcolm S. Handbook Of Adult Education In The United States. Chicago, Adult Education Association of the USA, 1960.

¹⁷ American Institute of Architects. Handbook Of Architectural Practice. Washington, 1958.

The last is Handbook Standar Nasional Indonesia: Analisa Biaya Konstruksi. 18 This book, titled Handbook SNI Analisa Biaya Konstruksi, was published by the National Standardization Agency in 2008 and spans 197 pages. It is a compilation of nine Indonesian National Standards on Construction Cost Analysis for earthworks, concrete, foundations, walls, plastering, woodwork, ceilings, floor and wall coverings, and iron and aluminum works. All the SNI Construction Cost Analyses included in this handbook establish the building material indexes and labor indexes required for each unit of construction work, providing a uniform reference for building and housing developers in calculating the unit price of construction work.

b. Purposes of Handbook

According to Tarigan the function of hand book is as a guide to information or aspects related to a problem or subject. ¹⁹ While according to Tambusai Handbook is a reference collection that contains of information that centered on a particular subject or subject, which is used as a guide for doing something. ²⁰ Both experts agree that handbooks function as a source of information and guidance, but with a slight difference in emphasis. Tarigan focuses more on the information aspect, while Tambusai emphasizes its function as a guide to action.

c. Developing Handbook

M.Winchell in his book Guide to Referencebook. A handbook is a compilation of a wide range of information that, in some fields, is essential as a reference aid. Handbook development refers to the process of creating a book of instruction, guidance, or information for a specific purpose, such as for an occupation, travel, or reference.²¹ It involves compiling and organizing relevant information to provide a comprehensive resource for the intended audience. This can include company policies and procedures, instructional guides, or reference materials. The development of a handbook typically involves research, writing, and review to ensure the accuracy and comprehensiveness of the information.

d. Material Development

Developing materials, as described by Tomlinson as cited in his second edition, is both an area of study and a practical effort. As a field, materials development involves understanding its principles and procedures. In other words, materials development encompasses all actions taken by writers, teachers or learners to provide sources of language input, and to optimize the use of those sources in a way that maximizes the potential of the input and stimulates purposeful output.²² A materials developer may write a textbook, tell a story, bring an advertisement into the classroom, express an opinion, give an example of language use, or read a poem aloud.

Experiential Learning Theory, proposed by Kolb, emphasizes learning through direct experience. This theory outlines four cyclical stages: Concrete Experience, Reflective Observation, Abstract Conceptualization, and Active Experimentation.²³ Learners engage in hands-on activities, reflect on their experiences, develop new concepts based on reflection, and apply them in future situations. In an English camp setting, this model is highly relevant as students participate in various language-rich, real-life activities that allow them to practice English in an immersive environment. The handbook, therefore, should be designed to guide and facilitate such experiential learning opportunities.

2. English Camp

a. Definition of English Camp

English Camp is an English language education program or activity designed to improve participants' English language skills through practical and interactive experiences. English Camp participants are usually involved in various activities such as language games, role plays, simulation of real situations, and discussions, which aim to improve their speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills in English.²⁴ Recent research shows that English Camp can be considered effective as a method of teaching English as a foreign language. Foreign language teachers need to seek innovative and creative teaching models, both inside and outside the classroom. In addition, a creative learning approach can be achieved through selective application of methods, innovative use of media, application of interesting techniques, and adjustment to a fun learning style.²⁵ And the English camp agenda was closed with performances by English camp participants and then continued by giving awards to the most active participants.

b. Purposes of English Camp

The function of English camp is to provide a fun and interesting way to stimulate students to learn English. It aims to improve students' English ability through various activities, games, and experiences, allowing them to use English in different situations and develop language skills such as listening, speaking, reading, and writing. ²⁶ In addition, English camp promotes feelings of understanding, helps maintain students' attention and concentration, and encourages the formation of friendships, creating a comfortable and pleasant learning atmosphere. In addition, it serves as an effective method to increase students' interest and ability in learning English as a second language.

c. Communicative Language Teaching (CLT) in English Camp

H. Douglas Brown is an English linguist famous for his work "Teaching by Principles: An Interactive Approach to Language Pedagogy". ²⁷ In his book, Brown discusses effective approaches to learning English, including Communicative Language Teaching (CLT). Brown considers CLT as an effective approach in developing students' communication skills in English. The role of Communicative Language Teaching (CLT) is pivotal for students involved in English Camp.

²⁶ Liu, M., Yang Hu, Y. and Peng, Y. 2017. "Changes in University Students' Perceptions towards a Two-Week Summer English Immersion Program", International Journal of Applied Linguistics and English Literature, Vol. 6, No. 2. Hal. 127-137.

²⁷ Douglas, D. A. N., & Frazier, S. (2001). Teaching by Principles: An Interactive Approach to Language Pedagogy .: H. Douglas Brown.

CLT underscores the significance of communication and interaction in the process of language acquisition. In the setting of English Camp, CLT serves as a facilitator for immersive language practice, enabling students to participate in authentic communication scenarios. This, in turn, contributes to the improvement of their English speaking, listening, and overall communication skills. The participation of proficient English language tutors and consultants in English Camps, as exemplified in the instances mentioned, reinforces the application of CLT principles, fostering an interactive and communicative learning environment.

Implementing CLT in English Camps corresponds with research findings indicating that students view English Camps favorably for enhancing their cognitive, affective, and psychomotor skills. Additionally, they report positive impacts on their speaking, reading, and writing abilities. Therefore, the application of CLT in English Camp can contribute to the holistic development of students' English proficiency and communication skills.

3. Research and Development

a. Definition of R&D

Research and Development (R&D) is a research method that produces a particular product, and tests the effectiveness of that product.²⁸ R&D research is a complex process and takes a long time, but it can provide good benefits to society, such as improving product quality and increasing productivity and effectiveness in various fields, including education.

²⁸ Sugiyono Sugiyono, S. (2010). Metode penelitian kuantitatif dan kualitatif dan R&D. Penan Bandung: Alfabeta, 2012). 407

b. Kinds of R&D

In academic literature, researcher commonly employ several instructional design handbooks, such as the 4D Models, Borg and Gall models, and the ADDIE models.

1. 4D Models

The Four-Door (4D) is a straightforward instructional design model that assists researcher in creating a product through four key steps: Defining, Designing, Developing, and Disseminating.²⁹ In the defining phase, a learner's needs analysis is conducted. The subsequent design phase involves creating a product based on the results of the learner's needs analysis. Following that, the development phase includes refining the product with input from expert judgments, lecturers, and learners to ensure its validity. The final step, the dissemination phase, involves sharing the product through various channels such as seminars, social media, journals, and more.

2. Borg and Gall Models

This development model comprises ten implementation steps, which include (1) research and information collecting, (2) planning, (3) developing a preliminary form of the product, (4) conducting preliminary field testing, (5) revising the main product, (6) conducting main field testing, (7) revising the operational product, (8) conducting operational field testing, (9) making final revisions to the product, and (10) disseminating and implementing it.³¹

c. ADDIE Models

ADDIE stands for Analysis, Design, Development, Implementation and Evaluation. The model can be applied in a variety of product development contexts, including models, learning strategies, learning methods, and teaching media and materials. The ADDIE model, designed by Dick and Carey, is a framework for designing learning systems.³³ ADDIE emerged in the 1990s and was developed by Reiser and Mollenda. One of its roles is to guide the development of training program tools and infrastructure that are effective, dynamic and supportive of training performance.³⁴

C. Theoritical Framework

This is the theoritical framework of this research as follows:

Initially, the researcher must engage with students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School in Palopo to gather accurate information. Subsequently, data was gathered through the administration of questionnaires and conducting interviews. Following that, the researcher formulated a design by choosing appropriate media. The next step involved developing the product with input from experts through their evaluations. Upon receiving expert opinions on the product, the researcher conducted a reassessment and subsequently promoted the product by disseminating it through socialization.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. Reseach Design

This study adopts the development research method, which is often known as Research and Development (R&D). This method aims to create a specific product and evaluate the effectiveness of the product.³⁶

In this study, the product development followed a four-step process adapted from the 4-D model developed by Thiagarajan and Semmel.³⁷ The four stages include: Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate. This model was chosen because its procedures are systematically organized, making it easy to apply and effective in guiding the creation of instructional materials.

B. Research Setting

The research location in this study is located at Mumammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. This school is located in Palopo, South Sulawesi. Researcher conducted research on June 20, 2024 to June 22, 2024.

C. Research Subject and Object

The subjects of this study were students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo who participated in English camp activities.

D. Development Procedure

In this study, researcher go through four procedures based on the 4-D model as follows:

a) Define

In the define stage, needs analysis, problem identification, and task analysis are conducted. In developing the handbook for the English Camp, reseacher applied the need analysis framework by Hutchinson and Waters, which distinguishes between target needs and learning needs.³⁹ Target needs include necessities is the essential English skills needed for camp activities, lacks is the gap between current abilities and required skills, and wants is the learners' personal goals and interests. Researcher gathered this information through surveys and assessments. Meanwhile, focus on how learners prefer to study, including their learning styles and motivations. By addressing both types of needs, the handbook is designed to support participants' effective learning during the camp. This involves the process of determining what the English camp participants need to learn, including conducting a needs assessment, identifying problems, and conducting a task analysis. Therefore, the output that researcher produce is in the form of characteristics or profile, gap identification, needs identification and detailed task analysis based on needs.

b) Design

The development of the handbook was to realize the design that had previously been validated by the supervisor. In the development stage, researcher focus on developing existing materials and adding new materials to the handbook. The materials to be developed by the researcher are self introduction, daily routine and asking and giving direction. The materials to be added are describing person, telling time and unforgettable experience. Researcher hope that the materials developed and added can develop the English language skills of students who are participants in the next English camp at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

c) Develop

In designing a handbook for the English camp of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo through R&D research, researcher focused on design using the Canva platform. The main purpose of this design is to create a product that is attractive, informative, and easy to understand for English camp participants. The researcher chose Canva because of its diverse graphic design features that are easy to use, allowing effective visual organization without the need for an indepth design background. Canva excels in providing customizable templates, ready-to-use design elements, and online collaboration capabilities.

In developing the design, researcher determined the theme and visual style that supports the atmosphere of the English camp, considering structure, layout, and visual consistency. Researcher also utilized Canva's interactive features to increase reader engagement, such as the use of links and clickable elements. Responsive design for various devices as well as printing possibilities were also our focus. Team collaboration on Canva makes it easy to work together on design development, while internal testing and improvements based on feedback ensure visual success and design effectiveness before final publication. By using Canva, researcher can optimize the design process to achieve research objectives and meet user needs efficiently.

d) Disseminate

The 4D design model concludes with the dissemination stage, This stage was carried out to socialize the develop products to be accepted by individuals and groups. The researcher disseminated or promoted the product to teacher at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo

E. Research Instruments

The research instruments in this study consisted of questionnaires and interviews.

1. Questionnaries of Need Analysis

The content of the questionnaire in this study may vary, depending on the specific objectives of the study, but in general it aims to gather information about students' needs for the English camp handbook that the researcher wants to develop. This questionnaire help researcher understand what students need and want so that the handbook can be more effective and in line with students expectations. This research needs analysis questionnaire consists of 16 questions where this questionnaire is adapted from previous research by Andini with a research entitled Developing Students'basic English Handbook For Freshmen English Language Education Study Program Of IAIN Palopo.

2. Interviews

The interview in this study serves as an instrument to verify the results obtained from the questionnaire used in the needs analysis for the development of the English camp handbook. The interview would clarify unclear or ambiguous responses from the questionnaire, as well as provide deeper insights into students' needs and preferences. By conducting interviews, the researcher can ensure that the data collected is accurate and reliable.

In addition, the interviews allowed participants to express additional needs that may not have been captured in the questionnaire. This helped in creating a more comprehensive and inclusive handbook. Interviews also provided context to the responses given, allowing the researcher to understand the reasons behind certain needs or preferences. Interviews are thus an important tool for developing relevant and effective handbooks that meet students' expectations.

F. Techniques of Data Collection

Data collection techniques in this study consisted of; interviews, field observations, need analysis and expert assessments.

1. Questionnaires

The initial stage involves a needs analysis, which includes all decisions related to conducting the analysis and developing the handbook. This covers the needs assessment (goals), performance analysis (instructional needs), and context analysis (limitations, available resources, and learner profiles).

2. Interview

Researcher interviewed students at English camp activities to obtain data information that would help researcher in determining handbook development for English camp at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

3. Field Observation

In the English camp activities of Muhammadiyah Boarding School palopo, the researcher also became a tutor so that researcher could directly make observations in the field by seeing how students use handout and worksheet. From this field observation, the researcher can see directly how the process of understanding the material contained in handout and worksheet because the researcher was involved as a tutor in the English camp activities. Data from the results of field observations helped researcher in developing handbooks.

4. Expert Assessment

After the product is finished, the expert assess it and provide some suggestions to ensure the content's quality, accuracy, and relevance. The purpose of this expert validation is to confirm that the handbook effectively meets the learners' needs, aligns with educational standards, and supports the objectives of the English Camp program.

G. Technique of Data Analysis

This research employed two primary techniques for data analysis: descriptive qualitative and quantitative. Descriptive quantitative analysis involves processing data gathered through questionnaires. Qualitative data analysis includes insights from interviews and observations conducted with students participating in English Camp activities at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo.

1. Analyzing the result of questionnaire

Student responses from all organized classes are accurately represented in the questionnaire data. 40

$$X = \frac{\sum x}{N} X 100\%$$

Figure 3.2 The formula of analyzing the result of questionnaire

Where:

X = Value

 $\sum x = Aggregate Answer$

N = Total students

The option with the highest percentage is the most preferred by students.

2. Analyzing the validation of the product by the expert

Expert analysis of the results from product validation by experts represents a central tendency. Use the formula below to conduct the analysis.⁴¹

$$M = \frac{B}{N}$$

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

A. Research Findings

At this point, the researcher presents the step-by-step process involved in creating the English Camp handbook for students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. As described in Chapter Three, the instructional materials were designed using the 4-D model of Research and Development. The subsequent section elaborates on each phase of the model in detail.

1. Define

At this stage the researcher distributes a needs analysis questionnaire via google form to find out the needs, desires, and shortcomings of students. This questionnaire consist of 16 questions wich have been filled in by 15 students of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo. From the result of the questionnaire the researcher got the data needed.

Before distributing the questionnaire, the researcher first validated the questionnaire to an expert. Then as for the result of the validation of the questionnaire intruments as follows.

Table 4.1 The result of the instrument's validation by the expert

Aspects	Score
Contents	4.2
Scope of the Content	3.55
Language	3.37
Average Score	3.70

The average score above achieves 3.70, it can be concluded that the instrument categorized as "Good" wich can be utilized with a little bit revision.

After the validator gave the validation, the researcher wentto the next stage namely distributing questionnaires through google form. There are 15 students from Muhammdiyah Boarding School Palopo who have filled out the questionnaire.

a. Necessity

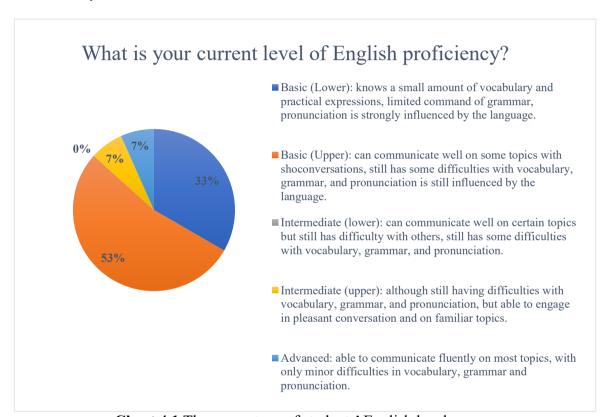

Chart 4.1 The percentage of students' English level

The researcher's purpose in the question which can be seen in the chart 4.1 was to find out the students' English level. The researcher gave 5 choices and choice B basic (upper) was the most chosen choice with 53% of the score.

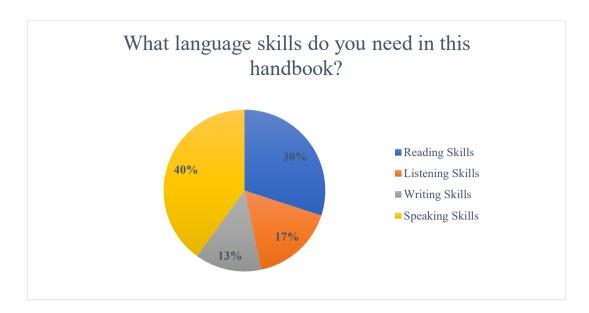

Chart 4.2 The precentage of language skills that support students' language skills

The researcher's aim in the chart 4.2 is to find out the aspect of language skills that need to be strengthened in handbook for English camp. Based on the chart above 40% of 15 students chose for speaking skills, 30% of 15 students chose reading skills, 17% of 15 students chose for listening skills and 13% of students choose for writing skills.

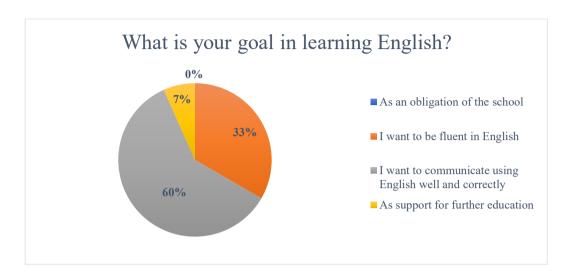

Chart 4.3 The precentage of students' goals in learning English

Chart 4.3 displays that 60% students chose to learning English to communicate using English well and correctly, 33% students chose to learning english to be fluent in English, 7% students chose to learning English to support for further education and no students chose that learning English as an obligation of the school (0%).

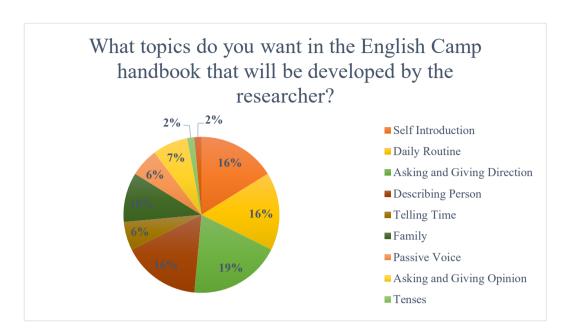

Chart 4.4 The percentage of topics students' want

Chart 4.4 illustrates the distribution of students' topic preferences. It reveals that 19% of students selected the topic of asking and giving directions, while 16% chose self-introduction, daily routines, and describing a person, respectively. Additionally, 10% of students preferred the family topic, 7% selected asking and giving opinions, 6% chose telling time and passive voice, and only 2% opted for tenses and narrative text topics.

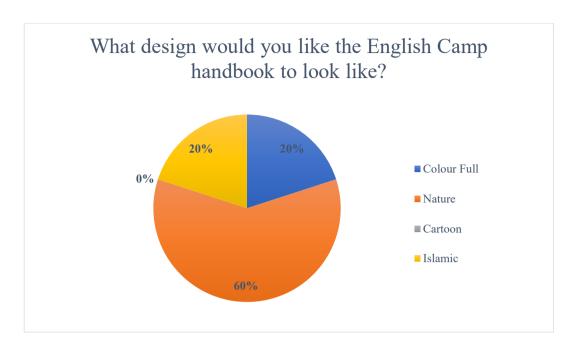

Chart 4.5 The precentage of design of students' wants

Chart 4.5 illustrates the preferred design for the English camp handbook based on students responses. The majority, 60%, chose the "Nature" design, making it the most popular option. Both the "Colour Full" and "Islamic" designs were selected by 20% of students each. Interestingly, the "Cartoon" design received no votes, indicating the least preference among strudents. This data suggests that a nature-inspired design aligns best with students preferences for the handbook's visual style.

Chart 4.10 illustrates the activities students prefer to improve their speaking skills. The majority of students 64% choose games as their preferred activity, suggesting they find interactive and fun methods more engaging for learning. Meanwhile, 25% of students prefer to conduct interviews in pairs, indicating that practicing with a partner helps them improve their speaking abilities. Only 11% of students choose dialog as their preferred activity.

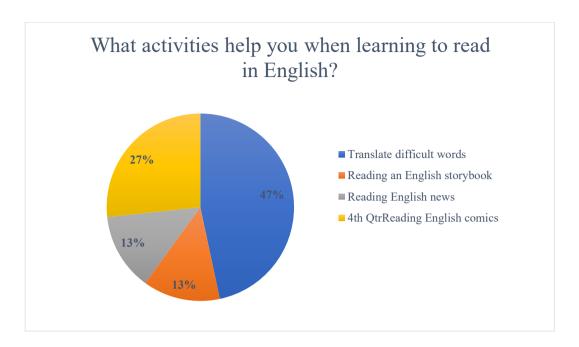

Chart 4.11 The percentage of activities of reading that students' prefer

Chart 4.11 illustrates the activities that help students when learning to read in English. The most common activity, chosen by 47% of students, is translating difficult words. This suggests that many students struggle with understanding unfamiliar vocabulary and find translation helpful in improving their reading comprehension. 27% of students prefer reading English comics, indicating that the combination of images and simple language makes reading easier and more enjoyable. 13% of students find reading an English storybook helpful, which may suggest that engaging narratives can support their understanding of the text. Another 13% choose reading English news, showing that some students benefit from exposure to real-life topics and practical language use.

Chart 4.12 The percentage of linguistic knowledge in writing that students' prefer Chart 4.12 shows students' opinions on which Knowledge in linguistics supports the development of writing in English. The majority of students 67% believe that vocabulary plays the most important role in enhancing their writing skills, as a broader vocabulary allows them to express ideas clearly and accurately. Meanwhile, grammar is considered crucial by 33% of the students, as it helps them write correct and well-structured sentences. Interestingly, expression was not selected by any student (0%), indicating that they may not view writing style or the use of natural phrases as a significant factor in improving their writing abilities.

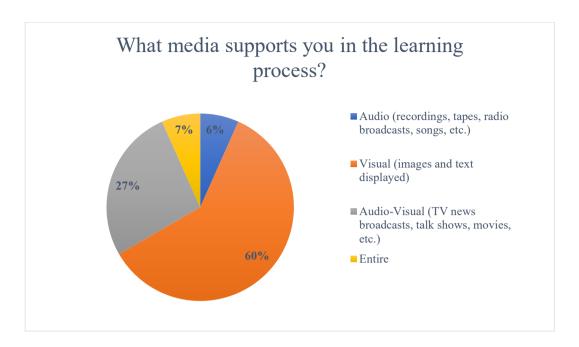

Chart 4.13 The percentage of media in learning process that students' prefer

Chart 4.13 shows the types of media that support students in the learning process. The majority of students (60%) prefer visual media, such as images and text, indicating that visual aids play a significant role in helping them understand and retain information. Audio-visual media, like TV broadcasts and movies, support 27% of students, suggesting that combining sound and visuals enhances their learning. Only 6% of students find audio media (recordings and radio) helpful, indicating it may be less effective when used alone. Meanwhile, 7% of students benefit from using all types of media, showing that a comprehensive approach may work best for some learners.

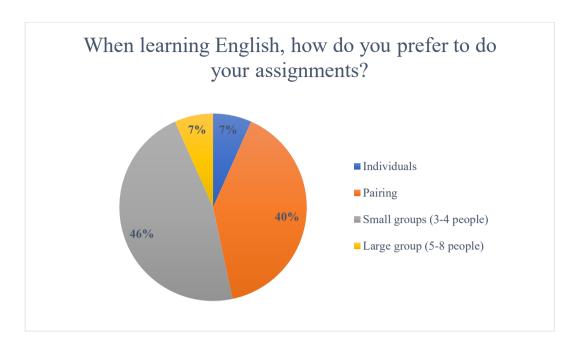

Chart 4.14 The percentage of students' preferences for completing assignments

Chart 4.14 illustrates students' preferences for completing assignments when learning English. The largest portion, 46%, prefers working in small groups (3-4 people), suggesting that collaborative learning in smaller groups may provide better communication and understanding. 40% of students prefer pairing, indicating that working with a partner allows for focused collaboration and idea-sharing. Only 7% prefer working individually, which may reflect a desire for independence or personal learning styles. Another 7% choose large groups (5-8 people), showing that a smaller number of students find value in broader group discussions.

The results of the needs analysis reveal that the students at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo strongly desire an English learning process that is enjoyable, interactive, and relevant to their daily lives. In terms of learning activities, most students prefer engaging and fun methods such as games (64%) to improve their speaking skills, translating difficult words (47%), and reading

English comics (27%) to enhance their reading comprehension. For writing, they emphasize the importance of vocabulary mastery (67%) over grammar or expressions. Visual media, such as images and texts, are the most preferred (60%), as they are seen as more effective in helping students understand and retain information. Additionally, students feel more comfortable working in small groups (46%) or pairs (40%), indicating that collaborative learning promotes better participation and understanding. These preferences highlight the importance of developing a handbook that not only provides level-appropriate content but also includes visually appealing design, interactive and enjoyable activities, and supports active, collaborative learning during the English Camp program.

2. Design

In the design stage of the English Camp handbook, The researcher developed five units with English lessons selected based on the results of a needs analysis. This handbook also includes Islamic values to match the school's identity as an Islamic school. By including Islamic elements, the handbook aims to make learning more meaningful and familiar for the students while improving their English skills.

Each unit in the handbook consists of four main parts. The vocabulary section introduces new words along with their meanings to help students expand their English knowledge. The expressions section provides useful phrases and sentences that students can use in daily conversations, making it easier for them to communicate. The main material section delivers the core English lesson, which is designed to strengthen students' understanding of the language through clear explanations and practical examples. Lastly, the tasks and activities section includes interactive exercises that allow students to practice what they have learned in a fun and engaging way. The following of the English Camp handbook can be seen in the table bellow.

2) Language

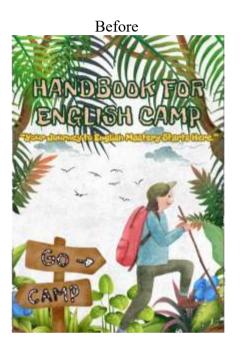

Language expert suggested Improve some vocabulary that is written correctly in the target language.

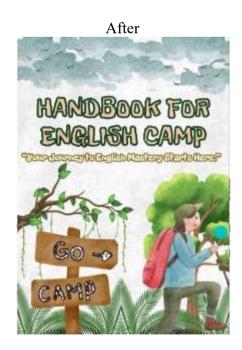

3) Design

Design and layout expert suggested for the title on the cover to have more space and less crowded elements.

4. Disseminate

At this stage, the researcher conducted product socialization and explained the objectives and contents of the English Camp Handbook used for English Camp activities. This activity was carried out on April 21, 2025, in the student classroom. In addition, during this stage, the researcher also explained the components of the English Camp Handbook, clarified the specific objectives of each section, and provided guidance on how to effectively use the handbook as a teaching tool during the camp activities. This ensured that students and instructors understood not only the purpose of the handbook but also how to implement it properly to maximize learning outcomes. Furthermore, to broaden the impact and academic contribution of the developed product, the researcher also conducted a national dissemination through a Zoom meeting, which was attended by participants from four universities: UIN Alauddin Makassar, UIN Mataram, UIN Syarif Hidayatullah Jakarta, and UIN Palopo. The main purpose of this national dissemination was to introduce and share the results of the research and development process, promote the English Camp Handbook as an innovative teaching material, and gather wider feedback from academics and practitioners across institutions to assess its relevance and potential application in different educational contexts.

The researcher also conducted brief interviews in Indonesian to gather feedback from ten student representatives regarding the English Camp Handbook that had been developed. From the interview results, it can be concluded that seven out of the ten students felt the handbook met their needs in terms of material selection, learning activities, and overall design. Meanwhile, the other three students mentioned that while the story in the handbook was very engaging, some of the material elements could be presented in a more appealing way to better suit the age group of the intended users. Based on the dissemination results, students generally responded positively to the English Camp Handbook. Students 1, 2, and 3 highlighted that the handbook's design was attractive and that the materials were easy to understand and aligned with their learning needs. Student 1 specifically appreciated the self-introduction material, mentioning that it helped expand their vocabulary. Student 2 emphasized that the materials were not only interesting and unique but also suitable for their level of proficiency. Meanwhile, Student 3 pointed out that the nature-themed design made the handbook even more appealing, as it matched their personal interests, and the content helped improve their English skills. Similarly, Students 4 and 5 gave positive feedback, particularly regarding the visual design of the handbook. Student 4 noted that the creative layout of each page maintained their interest and encouraged them to continue reading. Student 5 added that the variety and abundance of images in the handbook contributed to its appeal, making it more engaging for learners.

Overall, the feedback indicated that both the content and design of the handbook successfully captured students' attention and supported their language development.

B. Discussion

The researcher wrote this thesis as a response to solve the problem of English language skills of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students in English Camp activities. In connection with this, this research aims to create a feasible and attractive English teaching material for Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students. The teaching material developed is the English Camp Handbook which contains several materials that have been determined by the researcher based on the results of the student needs analysis where each material can improve the English language skills of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students, especially for speaking and reading skills.

This study used the 4-D model (define, design, develop, and disseminate) developed by S. Thiagarajan, Dorothy S. Semmel, and Melvyn I.⁴⁴ First, at the defining stage, researcher analyzed the needs of Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students using the theory of Hutchinson and Waters (1987) which consists of 2 things, namely target needs and learning needs. The results of the needs analysis showed that students need a handbook for English Camp activities that is interesting and can improve their English language skills. Based on the results of the needs analysis, students want a handbook with a nature theme and material that focuses on improving speaking and reading skills. Therefore, the researcher carefully selected the materials and design elements for the developed book.

After completing the define stage, the researcher stepped into the next stage, namely the design stage. In this stage, researcher began to develop several elements in the book such as book titles, color selection and several supporting elements. This English Camp Handbook consists of 5 units where each unit has one material. Not only that, in each material, researcher also added fun activities according to the existing material and several tasks that can be done by students in order to improve their English skills.

The third stage of 4D is the development stage. Researcher develop materials that have been compiled at the design stage. Researcher used the Canva application for further development of this product. This development was carried out by researcher for several weeks. After the first draft was completed by the researcher, this product was then submitted to expert validators to validate the product. There were three expert validators who validated this product, namely material experts, language experts, and design experts. From the three expert validators, the researcher's product received a score of 97% and was included in the "Very Good" category with detailed calculations can be seen in table 4.4.

The final stage of the development process carried out by researcher is the disseminate stage. At this stage, the researcher held a try-out meeting with Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo students to introduce the product that had been developed. In this activity, the researcher explained the contents of the product in detail. In addition, the researcher also collected input from the students through direct discussion to assess the effectiveness of the product. Based on the responses and opinions expressed by the students, it can be concluded that the product received a positive response and was well received.

However, despite its strengths, the handbook still has a notable limitation it lacks technological features such as QR codes, barcodes, or integrated digital tools. This shortcoming may reduce its accessibility and usability for a wider aud. Therefore, the researcher suggests that future researchers consider integrating technological components into the handbook to enhance its functionality, expand its reach, and make it easier to access by both educators and students in various educational settings.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The results indicate that development process of the English Camp handbook for students at Muhammadiyah Boarding School Palopo, It is evident that the product developed is considered viable and effective as a learning media to support English Camp activities. The handbook was designed based on a comprehensive needs analysis conducted through questionnaires and interviews involving students. The results showed that students need interesting and contextually relevant materials, especially to incraise their speaking skill and vocabulary. The handbook consists of five units: Self-Introduction, Daily Routine, Asking and Giving Directions, Describing People, and My Family. Each unit includes vocabulary enrichment, useful expressions, main materials, and interactive tasks and activities. The integration of Islamic values into the content further aligns the material with the school's identity and values.

The product was developed using the 4-D model comprising Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate phases to guarantee a well-organized and methodical process. The product was validated by three experts in content, language, and design. The validation results indicated that the English Camp Handbook meets the criteria of being good to excellent in all assessed aspects. Revisions were made according to the suggestions provided by the experts.

Furthermore, student responses during the dissemination stage showed a positive reception of the handbook, as it was found helpful, engaging, and appropriate for their language level. Thus, the developed English Camp Handbook can be used as a suitable teaching and learning medium to improve students' English proficiency during English Camp activities.

My Daily Routine as Santri

I wake up at 4:00 AM when I hear the adzan for Fajr prayer. I wash up and go to the mosque with my friends to pray. After that, we read the Qur'an together for a while. At 6:30 AM, I have breakfast and then clean my room. Afterward, we go to class to learn about Islamic studies, Arabic, and general subjects like math and English.

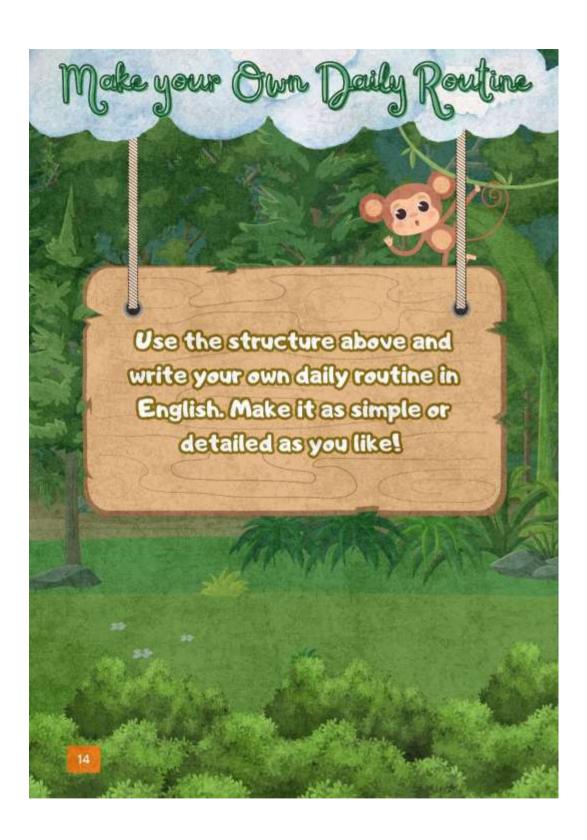

At noon, we pray Dhuhr and eat lunch. Sometimes I take a short nap or review my lessons before afternoon classes. After Asr prayer, we do chores or relax with friends.

In the evening, we pray Maghrib and Isha, then study until 10:00 PM. Finally, I go back to the dormitory, say my prayers, and sleep, ready for another blessed day.
