CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

One of the parts of Indonesian history that we are bequeathed to preserve is folktales area. Folktales is an anonymous story that is not bound by space and time, which circulates widely orally in the community. Folktales itself has another function besides as entertainment; in folktales containing values or educational messages of this folktales can be used as an example in life. Folktales is one of history and being one of the cultural assets in every region in Indonesia so that students can get to know history and cultural wealth through folktales.¹

Using folktale in the teaching of foreign languages as suggested that utilization folktales into the teaching of foreign languages can be done since it can enhance quickly learning, support classroom participation, and enlarge students' vocabulary. Other impacts of Utilizing folktale in reading comprehension teaching also found, he found that the use of folktale can stimulate students' interest in the reading class, students' involvement in discussion, enhanced students' self-confidence and even it makes the poor students active.²

In English there are four skills that must be mastered, namely listening, speak, read, and write. Among the four skills, reading is very important in the field of education. Also read central to the student's experience at school and in everyday life.³ Some experts (Grab 2004, Harmer 2001); defines reading as the process of gaining experience about a text that allows the reader finding, understanding, engaging, and clarifying written message thinking. Reading is also necessary for all humans in order to obtain new information or knowledge, Allah SWT says in QS. Al-'Alaq/96:1-5 which reads:

اقْرَأْ بِإِسْمِ رَبِّكَ الَّذِي خَلَقَ ١ (خَلَقَ الْإِنْسَانَ مِنْ عَلَقٍ) ٢ (اقْرَأْ وَرَبُّكَ الْأَكْرَمُ) ٣ (الَّذِي عَلَّمَ بِالْقَلَمِ) ٤
عَلَّمَ الْإِنْسَانَ مَا لَمْ يَعْلَمْ ٥

Meaning: "Read by (mentioning) the name of your Lord who created. He has created man from a lump of blood. Read it, and your Lord is the Most Glorious. Who teaches (man) with a pen. He teaches man what he does not know."

Reading problems in students include: 1) Lack of student interest in learning to read. According to them, learning lessons are complicated. 2) Reading text is difficult for students to understand. When a teacher instructs students about how to read, the teacher relies a lot on pure reading texts, which cannot attract students and challenge students to understand the text. To overcome the above problems, the authors are interested in developing Luwu folktales bilingual books as reading material.

The aim of developing a bilingual book of Luwu folktales as reading material because this research is very effective in teaching reading, significantly improving their reading skills. Bilingual folktales books are the right choice because bilingual folktale books will be more able to attract students' interest in reading compared to reading textbooks or reference books that only have lessons. Students at school like one of the things or readings that they find enjoyable to read are folktales or imaginative assignments. Dina (2017) states that through folktales the problems faced by the community can be understood. From the life problems faced by the community, it is then manifested in various values that become local wisdom.

Folktales are full of moral messages, virtues, and local wisdom that are closely related to the identity of the local community. Therefore, folktales are chosen as effective teaching materials in schools because they can be used by teachers to instill character values in students. In addition, folktales also acts as a form of preservation of local culture so that the younger generation still knows, understands, and loves their own cultural heritage. By presenting folklore in the form of learning media that is interesting and easy to understand, the learning process becomes more enjoyable and meaningful for students.⁴ The unique thing is that the folktales in Luwu folktales book have two languages, namely English and Tae language.

Language preservation is very important, including regional languages in Indonesia. Tae' is a regional language which is also an asset and identity of the Indonesian nation. Many local languages that are assets of this nation from year to year are on the verge of extinction and some of them have even become extinct. Tae' language is a local language that is the daily language of the people in the

Tana Luwu region. However, this is very contrary to the conditions that occur today, where the use of Tae' language in Tana Luwu can be said to be a rare item because the daily language used has switched to Indonesian. The use of local languages has begun to decrease because their parents no longer teach or use local languages when communicating with their children. This phenomenon causes the use of Tae' Language among school children, little by little began to be shifted by the dominant language, namely Indonesian. Language revitalization is an effort to revive new forms and functions of an endangered regional language. The smallest thing that can be done is to continue to maintain the Tae' language by teaching our children within the family. Besides the Indonesian language, we need to use the Tae' language since childhood so that it is easier to understand and cultural values are also inherited.⁵

In Indonesia there are many diverse folktales, one of which is from Luwu. Luwu folktales is full of life values that have begun to be neglected, so it is necessary to make efforts to preserve these values through preserving them. That have begun to be neglected, so it is necessary to make efforts to preserve these values through the study of Luwu folktales. These values through the study of Luwu stories. One of the Luwu folktales that is the story of Datuk Patimang's journey to spread Islam in Tana Luwu. Datuk Patimang is one of the three datuk who spread Islam in South Sulawesi. He is the bearer of the teachings of Islam in Tana Luwu.

Based on the pre-survey research on Friday, May 3, 2023, the researcher found many problems namely; 1) Lack of students interested in understanding the English text. 2) Lack of student motivation to read English books.

To overcome the above problems, the researcher is interested in developing a folktales book. Book through narrative text material in increasing students' interest in reading. The bilingual book (English and tae) researchers are interested in taking two languages because in addition to teaching at the same time want to introduce tae language to readers through folktales in Luwu. According to the researcher, this is very effective to be used in significantly to improve their reading skills. Folktale book is the folktale books are the right choice because folktales books will be more able to attract students' interest in reading than textbooks or reference books that are only used for reading. Students' interest in reading compared to textbooks or reference books that are only learning material, children at school like one of the things or reading that is fun to read is folktales or imaginative tasks. Fun to read is folktale or imaginative tasks.

The first thing to do is for the teacher to choose one title of a fictional story, legend, fable, folktale or other that belongs to the Narrative text type. Make sure the students have at least read or heard the chosen story to make it easier for them to think of building their own imagination. The similarity of the title selection for all students/groups aims to facilitate the examination and comparison of individual/group learning outcomes. Next, give them the Cause and Effect draft. The format can be customisable as desired by the English teacher.⁶

Narrative is the description of events especially in novels, fairy tales or legends, etc. or processes story telling skills. Based on the explanation above, the researcher is interested in conducting research Title Developing Luwu Folktales Bilingual Book of Luwu Fairy Tales for Class 10 of MAN Palopo in Improving Students' Reading Comprehension Ability on narrative text.

The researcher would like to use Research and Development Methods (R n D). The name of the book is "Developing Luwu Folktales Book As Reading Material for 10th Grade of MAN Palopo ."

5. The choice of theme is based on an analysis of English material for grade 10 students of MAN Palopo.

F. The Assumption and Delimitation of Research

This research has assumptions in designing folktales books for teaching reading narrative texts for grade 10 students at MAN Palopo, as follows:

1. In evaluating the design of the folktales book, expert judgment will be objective.
2. Students will use book guides to guide them in developing their reading of narrative texts.

In compiling this research, researchers have the following limitations:

1. The book of folktales contains two languages of Luwu folktales.
2. Folktales books are focused on Luwu folktales, for example The story of five opu daeng warriors in the Malay lands / Zainuddin Tika, Mas'ud Kasim, Sahabuddin, Ruslan Sri, Zakariah Djaruddin.
3. Material for folktales books focuses on teaching reading narrative texts.
4. 4-D Model (Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate).

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Previous Research Findings

In the development of the folktales book is a research that will produce a product in the form of a book. The book developed is a bilingual book of Luwu folktales. The researcher developed the book to improve the skills of reading narrative texts in folktales.

Azizah (2020) conducted the research entitled “Developing of Contextual Based Javanese Folk Story Books in Brebes Regency”. The purpose of this study was to develop contextual text books based on Javanese folktales. This research uses a research and development approach (Research and Development). This research produced a folktales reading book that suited the needs of students and teachers. The text reads folktale recreated that is, contains a reading of folktales Brebes Regency. Her readings include Jaka Poleng, Dewi Rantangsari, Karo Baya Baby Shaman, Origins of Paguyangan Village, Origins of Pesantunan Village and Origins of Tanggungsari Village. Readings are accompanied by illustrations that are given an attractive color. The similarities of this research are the same as developing books, especially folktale. The difference between the research above and this research is that the research above develops contextual textbooks based on Javanese folklore, this research develops a bilingual book of Toraja folktale.⁷

This study aims to determine the extent to which the folktale that exists in student books identify and add local stories to students 'books and to include local folktales in the ninth grade junior high school students' books in Rejang Lebong district as additional teaching materials. This study used the research and development model of Borg and Gall (1983) with several modifications. This study indicates that students in the folktales that are in the textbook but sometimes have difficulty understanding them. This research also identified 3 (three) Rejang Lebong folktales that fit into the student books: The Legend of the Crying Stone, Lalan Belek, and Mining Rail. The material that has been developed can be used as additional reading learning material. The similarity of this research is that both use folktale and this research has the same function for reading learning materials. The difference between the research above and this research is the research above identifying and adding folklore to student books as an additional teaching material, while this research develops folklore books. The above research uses the research and development model of Borg and Gall (1983) with several modifications. Meanwhile, this study uses the 4D model.⁸

objectives of this study are: 1) describing the needs of students and teachers for the Wali Gendon myth folktale book as teaching material for Javanese Junior High School in Pekalongan Regency, and 2) developing the Wali Gendon mythical folktale book as teaching material for the Javanese Junior High School in Pekalongan Regency. The approach used in this research is the research and development approach (Research and Development). This study produced a mythical Wali Gendon folktale book as teaching material for the Javanese language in junior high schools in Pekalongan Regency. The book contains WaliGendon's journey from childhood to death, supplemented by illustrative images supporting the story. The similarities in this research are the same as the teaching materials and the approach used in research is the same as the Research and Development approach. The difference between the above research and this research is that the above research develops a book of mythical folklore of Wali Gendon. Meanwhile, this research develops a bilingual book of Luwu folklore. The above research produced a fairy tale book of the gendon folktale.

The purpose of this study was to integrate local culture into language materials that can improve students' reading skills. This research used the ADDIE model for development and assessment. This research is dedicated to developing reading materials centered on the local culture of Luwu. These materials were customized to meet the specific needs of junior high school students in the Luwu area, in accordance with the 2013 curriculum for grade VIII. The result of this research is an enrichment book designed to improve students' reading skills. Each text in the book is accompanied by authentic pictures to facilitate students' understanding and engagement with the material. The equation of this research is both developing books, especially the folklore of Luwu. The difference between the above research and this research is that the above research lies in its unique focus: the creation of a reading book based on the local culture of Luwu, which is specifically made as an enrichment material for studying various types of texts in class VIII. Such a resource is unprecedented, signaling a significant contribution to educational materials in the region, this study developed a bilingual English and tae book on Luwu folklore.⁹

B. Theoretical Review

1. Reading

a. Definition of Reading

Reading is the act of looking at a collection of written symbols and deciphering their meaning. When we read, our eyes detect written characters (letters, punctuation marks, and spaces) and our brain converts them into phrases, sentences, and paragraphs that convey information to us. It is possible to read silently (in our heads) or loudly (so that other people can hear). Reading is an ability that allows you to receive information. We collect information from it. However, reading is a dynamic process that allows us to speak in order to pronounce the words we read. Reading is a productive ability in this sense since we are both receiving and transmitting information as we learn (even if only to ourselves).

Learning to read is one of the competencies taught to students in low grades. The success of learning to read in the lower grades is very important to note, because it is the foundation for the specialization and success of student learning in the next stage (lessons in advanced classes). If language and literary learning in the low class fails, then it is most likely that similar things will happen in the high class. Therefore, learning in the low class is like "building a foundation to produce a sturdy building". Thus, the teacher's task to teach reading skills in low classrooms becomes very difficult. However, as stated by experts and research also makes it evident that only teachers can create conducive learning environment, motivate students to learn, and enhance student learning outcomes. This is possible only through a valid and well planned classroom interaction.¹⁰ Mastering reading skill like skimming, scanning and interencing is vital for academic, professional and personal success. This article outlines benefits, objectives and pratical tips.¹¹

Reading, in keeping with Nunan (2003: 68), may be a fluent method within which readers mix data from a text with their previous information to construct meaning. It means reading is not solely the activity of reading some sentences however conjointly understands the meaning. Reading also plays a very important role in education as new analysis conducted by Alice Sullivan and Matt Brown (2013:37) from the Institute of Education (IOE) state that youngsters between the ages of ten and sixteen who place reading for created a lot of unimaginable progress, particularly in math, vocabulary, and orthography children who seldom read.¹²

According to Karen (2003), that reading is the process of deciphering print. Reading is described as the act of causing a reader to comprehend the meaning of a work that has been read. It means that the reading will reveal the author's expression in order for the reader to fully comprehend the reading content. The reader's actions of read arrest and interpretation of ideas followed the soul's outpouring in living up to the plot.

Reading, according to Harris and Graham (2015), is a purposeful practice. Reading, according to Scanlon et al. (2010), is a dynamic process that necessitates the study, coordination, and interpretation of a variety of sources of knowledge. It means that reading is a method of gaining a better understanding of a text. By reading source information from a text, the reader can comprehend information. Reading will then help you understand the text, and it's also a good way to learn about the plot.

The reader must be able to do the following in order to comprehend the text:

- 1) Read the words out loud.
- 2) Get the "meanings" of the words.
- 3) Combine the terms to form concrete concepts.
- 4) Create a broader model of the text's content.

Reading identifies and recognizes printed or written symbols that serve as a stimulus to remember meaning built up through experience, according to Thinker in Abbot (1988). Reading, according to Nurhadi in Hidayatullah (2007), is a complex and difficult operation. Since it includes the readers' internal and external influences. The term "internal influences" refers to anything that has a connection with the reading materials and the reading environment.¹³

According to David (1989), "Reading is not an invariant skill, that there are different types of reading skills that correspond to the many different purposes we have for reading". The writer is confident that in the classroom, during students' reading activities, they have several goals: to graduate from high school and equip themselves with the skills to pursue their studies, whatever their goals might be. Reading comprehension is needed to achieve the objective.¹⁴

Based on some definitions presented, reading could be defined as a complex process whereby looks at and understands what has been written, the combination of some components that result from one active attempt the part of the reader to understand the writer's message.

In Teaching English, Listening, Reading, and Writing are some of the skills in English. Aside from these talents, reading becomes an essential skill that students should master since they are still young. The task is a crucial factor that influences one's activity in communication. People consider reading an essential activity, so that people usually say that reading is one of the most powerful ways to expand one's horizons. The job is exciting because it helps people to access a wide variety of knowledge without having to fly. Humans are basically creatures who are always curious and need knowledge. In his life, he always needs the provision of knowledge. Knowledge is everything that is gained through experience. because humans are given god for the ability to think, the experience can be processed so that the meaning and essence of the experience is taken, which humans store as cognition. Furthermore, humans also have language so that in addition to thinking, they can also communicate the results of the truth and can be disseminated.¹⁵

Reading comprehension is a process of constructing meaning from reading material by combining prior knowledge and experience, information contained in the text and the reader's views related to the text being read. Information contained in the text and the reader's views related to the text being read (Duke, ¹⁵ Santaria, R. (2019). Konsep Dasar Metodologi Penelitian-Panduan Praktis Penyelesaian Studi. Laskar Perubahan.

2003). While reading comprehension according to (Anderson & Cheng, 1999) is a complex mental process that requires cognitive involvement a complicated mental process that requires cognitive involvement that is from top to bottom top-down or vice versa from bottom to top down) or vice versa from bottom to top (bottom-Up). Besides that, the understanding or view of about reading comprehension also comes from Rand (2002) who argues that reading comprehension is a process of eliciting and analyzing reading comprehension is a process of eliciting and making meaning by engaging or interacting directly with written language.¹⁶

Text comprehension depends on language proficiency and information processing. Difficult word recognition disrupts understanding by consuming excessive cognitive capacity.¹⁷ Reading comprehension is the capability of the readers to process the text by understanding the meaning and transferring the information in more complex concerns.¹⁸ Concerning this, the application of reading comprehension is an opportunity to attain the goal in reading which is understanding the meaning of the text to get information and transfer it into the readers' own words.¹⁹ So reading comprehension can be concluded that a very complex mental process that is related or related to the creation and arrangement of meaning involving cognitive aspects through combining previous experience and knowledge with knowledge obtained at this time (from reading material) either by using a top-down or bottom-up reading model by interacting or engaging directly with written language or text.²⁰

When viewed from some of the descriptions above both in terms of language in general and in terms of reading comprehension or what is commonly known as reading comprehension, then learning to read is not only to recognise words but also to understand text or reading material.²¹

2. Kinds of Reading Text

There are several kinds of reading text, as follows:

1) Explanation Text

The definition as well as the explanation's goals. An explanation is a text that describes how natural, social, technological, and cultural phenomena are created. The object of the explanation text is to clarify the "why" and "how" of the phenomenon's creation. It is commonly used in textbooks on science, geography, and history. (1.) Explanation structure in general a broad statement; a summary of the phenomena at hand to be explained. Sequenced explanation; displaying a series of steps which explain the phenomena, (2). Language Feature Featuring generic participant; sun, rain, etc. Using chronological connection; to begin with next, etc. It is using a passive voice pattern and using the simple present tense.

2) Report Text

A report is a piece of writing that provides details about something in its current state. It is the product of careful study and analysis. (1) Report text structure.

General classification: this is where the general component is classified first of thing; animal, public place, plant, etc., which will be discussed in general.

Description: describing the item discussed in detail: part customs or deeds for living creatures, as well as material use, (2). Report's Language Feature:

Introducing a group or a broad concept: Using conditional logical connections, such as when, so, and so forth: Using the present basic tense.

3) Narrative Text

A narrative or story is a report of connected events, real or imaginary, presented in a sequence of written or spoken words, or still or moving images, or both. The word derives from the Latin verb narrare, “to tell”, which is derived from the adjective gnarus, “knowing” or “skilled”. Narrative can be organized in a number of thematic or formal categories: non-fiction (such as definitely including creative non-fiction, biography, journalism, transcript poetry, and historiography); fictionalization of historical events (such as anecdote, myth, legend, and historical fiction); and fiction proper (such as literature in prose and sometimes poetry, such as short stories, novels, and narrative poems and songs, and imaginary narrative as portrayed in other textual forms, games, or live or recorded performance).

Narrative text is a story with complication or problematic events and it tries to find the resolutions to solve the problems. An important part of narrative text is the narrative mode, the set of methods used to communicate the narrative through a process narration. Narrative texts are life quality texts that improves life more than knowledge. Both the narrative and descriptive text has a hierarchical structure. There are definition, rank, ranking, cause-effect relationships, problem/solution, and comparison among the basic structural patterns.²²

A narrative may be categorized as non-fiction (e.g., New Journalism, creative non-fiction, biographies, and historiography) or fiction (e.g., New Journalism, creative non-fiction, biographies, and historiography) (i.e., literature in prose, such as short stories and novels, and sometimes in poetry and drama, although in theatre the events are primarily being shown instead of told). According to Pardiyono (2007), narrative text is a form of text used to recount past events with a focus on problematic experience and resolution in order to entertain and teach moral lessons to the reader. A narrative, according to Anderson and Anderson (2003), is a piece of text that tells a story and entertains or teaches the reader.

As a result, the research her has come to the conclusion that a narrative text is a natural or imaginary tale text that uses past events to entertain the reader.

a) Generic structure of the narrative. A narrative text consists of the

(1) Orientation: Introducing the participants and reminding them of the time and location.

(2) Difficulty: explaining the escalating situations that the participants must deal with.

²² Hikma, A. (2023). Improving Students' reading Comprehension On Narrative Text Using Guided Reading At Sman 2 Palopo (Doctoral dissertation, Institut Agama Islam Negeri Palopo).

(3) Resolution: demonstrating the participant's preferred method of resolving issues, for better or worse.

b) Narrative language characteristics. Using verbs that describe procedures. Making use of a temporal conjunction. Making use of the easy past. The story is well structured, with a strong focus on character development. It's written in a conversational, descriptive format. There are a few literary styles that fall into the narrative text category. Listed below are a few examples:

(1) Fables, legends, myths, and realistic stories are all examples of folktales. Mysteries, science fiction, fantasy, or realistic fiction.²³

3. Folktales

a. Definition of Folktale

Eric K. Taylor (2000) The word "folktale" refers to a variety of stories. A folktale is a traditional story that has been passed down through the generations by word of mouth, either from parent to child or by countless storytellers gathered around numerous evening fires. Nobody knows who wrote the first version of the story, and there are typically multiple versions of the same story.²⁴

Retold by Kathy Burke (2003), A folktale is a traditional story that has been passed down from generation to generation. Every culture has its own collection of folktales, and many of them have never been written down. As a result, the story we read or hear today can vary significantly from the original. We frequently don't know who the original author was.²⁵

²³ M. , K., & Anderson, (2015) "Text Types in English 2", (Malaysia: The modern art production group, 8.

²⁴ Eric K Taylor, "Using Folktales",(Cambridge University, 2021), 56.

The researcher came to the conclusion that based on the above explanations folktales are stories or legend told from persons to others by using oral communication and its unknown who is the original author of the story.

b. Characteristics of folktales

Share a number of common characteristics. Folktales follow straight forward story lines with traditional, easy to follow plotlines. Developmentally, young children haven't acquired the cognitive skills to appreciate irony or more complex story structures. Folktales are sometimes criticized for being "flat" or too simple and lacking nuance. But this criticism misses the point that makes these timeless stories so appealing to kids. The simple plotlines, make it easier for kids to follow the action, remember critical details, tell characters apart, and understand consequences.

Although the main characters generally take the form of humans or animals, they may also be imaginary, and in some cases, possess magical powers, Each protagonist or main character in a folktale confronts a major conflict or series of problems that he or she must resolve. These challenges require a protagonist to make decisions in order to solve a problem. "Good" decisions lead to positive outcomes, while "poor" decisions lead to negative or unwanted outcomes.

²⁵ Retold by Kathy Burke, "World Folktales, ed. by Edinburgh Gate", (Penguin Books, 2003)

A good example of a popular trickster character is Conejito. In this Panamanian folktale, a young rabbit must outwit larger predators in order to return home safely. Another trickster tale is When Turtle Grew Feathers, a popular story from the Choctaw Nation. The plot is similar to the well-known story of the Tortoise and the Hare and features Turkey who adds an interesting twist.

Since folktales focus on how the character(s) confront a challenge or series of obstacles to solve a problem, they also demonstrate moral lessons and illustrate the core values that a culture holds in common. These aspects of folktales combine to reinforce a culture's core values and traditions.

Another key element is that folktales often take place in natural settings, like forests, fields, bodies of water, mountains, villages, or trails. Since these places would be part of a culture's natural surroundings, a child would already be familiar with the settings of the plot, giving the story more meaning and credibility.

4. Advantages and disadvantages of folktales

These classic stories are not only highly entertaining, they also play an important role in passing along core values or character traits. Folktales were often employed to share a common history, to reinforce cultural values, or highlight important traditions.(advantages) These negative implications of fairy tales, both young and old, appear in almost every story across the board. Low self esteem.Unrealistic ideas of love. An outdated sense of reality. An extreme misunderstanding of good vs. evil. (disadvantages).

5. Bilingual Book

The term Bilingualism refers to the presence of two languages (Parker, 20016). Rudin (2017) defines bilingual literature as two languages together appearing with equal or similar weight, extent, and format. Bilingual books can be seen as a type of multicultural literature and can serve as authentic texts for students to learn vocabulary, collocation, and idiomatic expressions.

According to Cenoz (2013) and De Angelis (2019) cited in Maluch and Kempert (2017), the theoretical assumption is that bilinguals, especially bilinguals with high proficiencies in both languages, have high proficiency in both languages. Theoretical assumption is that bilinguals, especially bilinguals with high proficiencies in both languages, can draw from two language systems and thus have a broader linguistic repertoire and can think more abstractly about language and can think more abstractly about language than monolinguals. According to the theory, researchers. According to this theory, the researcher describes bilingual as a language that consists of more than one language. Therefore, a bilingual book can be interpreted as a book in which there is more than one language. The book made by the researcher consists of two languages, namely English and Indonesian. This will certainly help children in understanding English with the children's language.²⁶

²⁶ Maluch, Jessica Tsimprea & Kempert, Sebastian (2018). Bilingual Profiles and Third Language Learning: The Effects of the Manner of Learning, Sequence of Bilingual Acquisition, and Language Use Practices. International Journal of Bilingual Education and Bilingualism. ISSN: 1367-0050 (Print) 1747-7522 (Online) Journal homepage: <http://www.tandfonline.com/loi/rbeb20>

Brisik (2019) states that bilingual is viewed as qualified education delivered in two languages. It means that the process of teaching and learning at class should be in the form of two languages in delivering the materials.²⁷

6. Learning Media

Media is an integral learning resource in the learning process. Inseparable in the learning process, media as medium as an introduction to teaching materials that will be channeled from the educators to students who are expected to In general, media can be understood as an intermediary of information information that comes from the source of information to be received by the receiver. The information can be anything, whether it is education, politics, technology and information or what is commonly referred to as news.²⁸

According to Sudjana, the media, if understood broadly, are understood broadly, media are people, materials, or events that build conditions so that students are able to acquire knowledge, skills, or attitudes. Textbook teachers and the school environment are media. Using the right media to improve reading skills is very important. One of the media used is by using picture media.²⁹ The use of this media is by the way, in learning students are shown by educators a very interesting image media so that children are interested in the image media.³⁰

Types of media

Media has three types, namely visual media, audio media, and audio visual media.

a. Visual Media

Visual media is one type of media that prioritises the sense of sight, so this media is usually in the form of pictures, videos, and so on. In general, visual media that is often used by many people is a projector and the information conveyed to the recipient of information in a visual form as well.

There are two types of visual media, namely motion visual media and still visual media. In fact, both types of visual media can be combined into one unit. With visual media, there will be a lot of people who are interested in receiving the information provided. In addition, the material provided on visual media will be easy to understand because it has examples of images in the form of facts.

b. Audio Media

Audio media is media that is usually used to broadcast information or messages through sound. Therefore, the sense of hearing becomes a sensory tool that is quite important in receiving messages through audio media. This audio media is usually often found on radio broadcasts. However, along with the times and technology, audio media has developed into podcasts.

You can get various kinds of information in a podcast broadcast. Thus it can be said that messages received through audio media have the nature of providing verbal information and providing non-verbal information. Verbal information in the form of words or spoken language. While non-verbal information is in the form of vocalisation or sounds.

c. Audio Visual Media

Audio visual media is a type of media that combines visual media with audio media, so that the information provided is in the form of images or videos that have sound. Therefore, not a few people say that this audio visual media is more interesting to see and hear. The combination of these two media not only stimulates one sense tool, but can directly two sensory tools, namely the senses of hearing and vision.

Audio visual media is divided into two types, namely motion audio visual media and silent audio visual media. We can see motion audio visual media in the form of sound pictures, films, and others. While silent audio visual media in the form of sound books, sound pages, and soon.

7. Luwu Folktales

Incorporating local culture into language learning boosts reading skill through enhanced motivation, curiosity, emotional connection, cultural identify and appreciation.³¹ Strategies for integrating local wisdom into language learning involve utilizing regional literary texts, incorporating filktales, employing traditional songs, integrating cultural rituals and enganging students in culturally relevant projects.³²

The kingdom of Luwu existed in the 10th century, estimated to be contemporary with the Srivijaya kingdom and other kingdoms on the island of Java. From this estimate, some have surmised that the kingdom of Luwu already existed in the 10th century. In Epos I Lagaligo, which is the oldest source of Luwu history collected by Dutch scholars, it is stated that the first to establish the kingdom of WarE around Ussu was named Batara Guru. Batara Guru was the eldest son of To PatotoE and Datu PalingE. Batara Guru is said to be a human incarnation of a god who was sent down by Patotoe to earth where at that time there was a vacuum. In the interpretation of the word 'void' by historians, it means the absence of a government that organizes human life from chaos (Sianre Bale) in tana Ware. Some writers have argued that I La Galigo is the longest epic story in the world, what we now have are only episodes of the story collected at one time by Dutch writers, and published as summaries in 1939 and 1954. One scholar who has read more than 10,000 pages of manuscripts relating to I La Galigo has described the epic as an open-ended story with a well organized framework, with a beginning and an end. Hundreds of characters play a part in the story. When a new episode is introduced, it fits in with the rest of the story, 'every event, new or old, is linked together like a chain'.

In modern times, folklore, especially in Luwu, is rarely taught by parents. This is due to the lack of understanding of the history of the Luwu kingdom obtained and the lack of interest in reading. In formal education itself, the local content curriculum (mulo) has also been abolished. Although currently there are many Luwu folktales that have been preserved by some people through social media, blogs, and websites. Through social media, blogs, and websites. This is due to the unclear or invalid sources used to write the story. The validity of folktales needs to be explored more deeply from the right sources, namely from the lontara books and people who are able to interpret the lontara books.³³

8. Tae Language

The people of South Sulawesi especially in the Luwu area also has a language that the community speakers call the language Tae language. Tae language is one of the local languages spoken in local language spoken in Tana Luwu, South Sulawesi, especially in Luwu Regency, Palopo City, North Luwu Regency, and East Luwu Regency. Tae language is used as the conversational language of the local people. The Tae language family is Austronesian Malayo Polynesian family. Tae has several dialects including including the dialects of Rongkong, Luwu East, Bone-bone, Masamba, and Bua dialects, which have lexical similarities. Tae language, most widely spoken in Luwu Regency includes Larompong sub-district, Suli sub-district, Belopa sub-district (the capital of Luwu), Kecamatan Bajo, Kecamatan Bupon (Bua Ponrang), Kecamatan Bastem (Basse Sangtempe'), Walenrang sub-district, and Palopo city. Name other names for the Tae language are the dialects Rongkong, Rongkong Kanandede, Luwu, East Toraja, Sada, Toware, Sangngalla', Tae'-Tae'. A number of dialects exist in the Tae language, namely the Rongkong dialect, Luwu dialect, East Northeast Luwu dialect, South Luwu dialect, and the Bua dialect (Hidayah, 2017).³⁴

9. Material Development

Material development is a systematic process of designing, compiling, and modifying learning materials to suit the needs of learners and learning objectives.

Teaching material development is an effort to create or modify learning resources (such as books, modules, LKS, videos, and digital media) to effectively support the learning process. Good teaching materials help students learn more easily, quickly, clearly, and independently, and can increase student motivation and learning outcomes. The main purpose of developing teaching materials is so that the material presented is in accordance with the curriculum, student characteristics, and the latest scientific developments. The materials developed should also be able to foster 21st century skills such as critical, creative, communicative, and collaborative thinking.³⁵

Principles and Models of Teaching Material Development

The main principles in the development of teaching materials include:

1. Suitability to the curriculum and student needs.
2. Feasibility of content, language, presentation, and graphics.
3. Providing meaningful and relevant learning experiences.
4. Contains moral and social values that support student character.

Development models that are often used include:

1. ADDIE (Analysis, Design, Development, Implementation, Evaluation).

³⁵ "Material Development on English Language Teaching" oleh Ahmad, Djuwairiah (2019), Pusaka Almailda, Makassar.

2. Borg & Gall (Research and Development).
3. Four Steps Teaching Material Development (4S-TMD): selection, structuring, characterization, and didactic reduction. This model emphasizes the selection of relevant materials, systematic structuring of materials, adjustment of student characteristics, and didactic simplification for easy understanding.

Teaching Material Development Process

The general stages of developing teaching materials include:

1. Needs analysis: Identifying student needs and learning objectives.
2. Design: Developing the framework and content of the material according to the curriculum.
3. Development: Creating teaching materials in various formats (text, visual, digital).
4. Validation and Trial: Testing the feasibility and effectiveness of teaching materials through expert validation and classroom trials.
5. Revision and Implementation: Improving teaching materials based on feedback, then widely used.

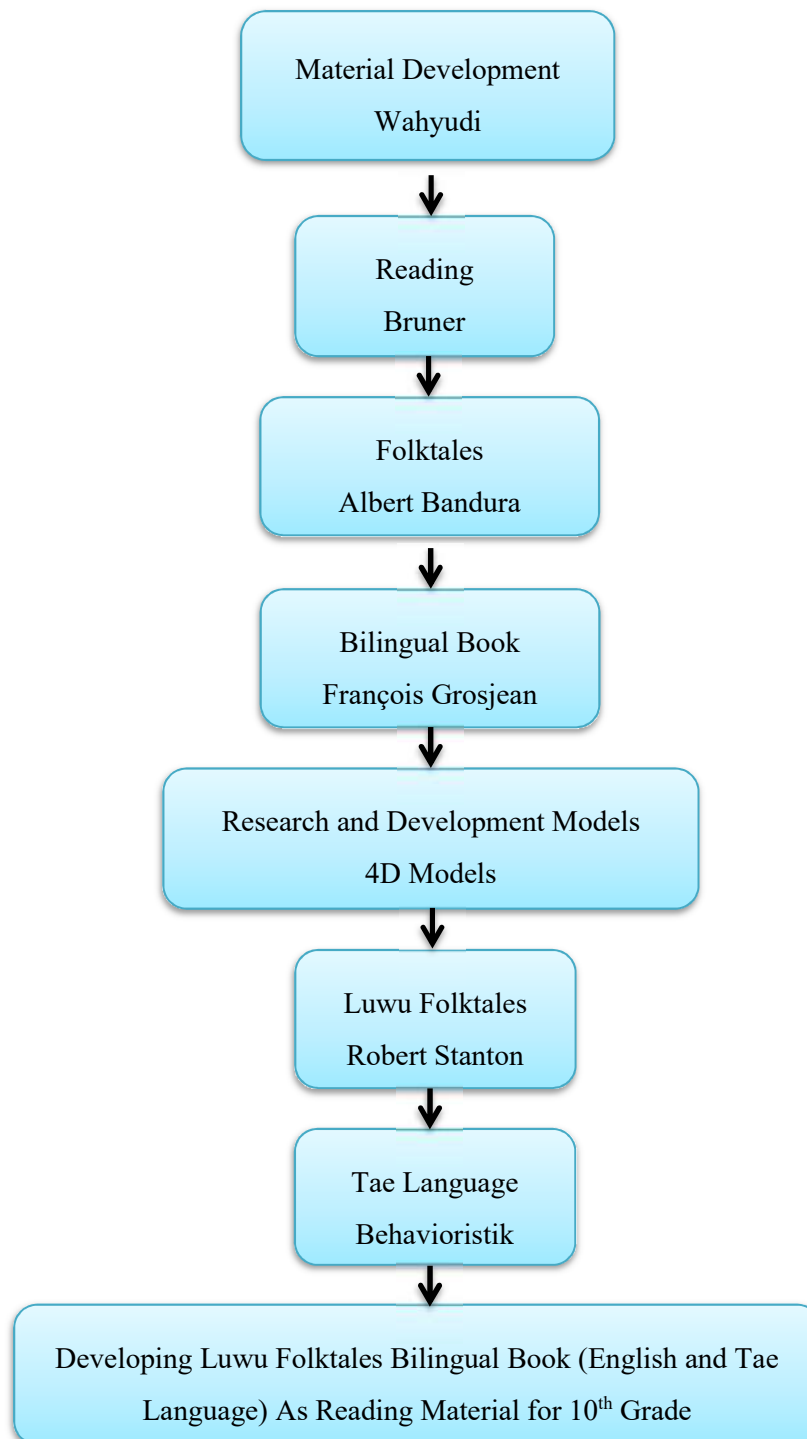

Wahyudi defines development as the process of identifying, evaluating content, and learning strategies to achieve predetermined learning objectives. The development of teaching materials can also be done by utilizing technology and learning media, for example the development of teaching materials based on modules, student books, or digital media such as Nearpod for procedure text material.

C. Conceptual Framework

The problem is that grade 10 students of MAN Palopo do not yet have learning media for reading narrative text skills in English for bilingual folklore. Therefore, researchers will design a book containing Toraja folklore for grade 10 at MAN Palopo. By designing a handbook that is developed to function as a complement and companion to textbooks, the researcher hopes to be able to provide broad insight into learning activities in schools and to suit the needs of grade 8 students. In addition, it can increase motivation in teaching and learning skills in reading narrative texts. After analyzing the needs of the folklore book to be designed, the researcher will develop a folklore book based on expert evaluation and then design the book. Until in the end the researcher will produce Luwu folktales bilingual books in learning narrative text reading skills that are suitable for grade 10 students.

Learning activities are an interaction between teacher and student in conveying goals in learning. In achieving a predetermined educational purpose, a teacher must teach as optimally as possible. One effort that can be made is to use learning media that are interesting for students.

The use of instructional media in folktale books will be good if it can help students learn reading and help students achieve learning goals. Folktales learning media are arranged and developed in such away.

CHAPTER III

THE METHOD OF RESEARCH

In this research, researcher would use the Research and Development (R&D) method to design Luwu folktales books in teaching reading narrative texts for grade 10 at MAN Palopo. In this research, researchers would used a 4-D model.

A. Research Design

In this research, there are four steps in developing products adopted from 4-D that have been developed by Thiagarajan and Semmel. The 4 steps are: Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate as followed:

Researcher would use this development model because the procedure is systematically arranged so it is better used and very helpful in making teaching material media.

C. Subject and Object of Research

The subjects who participated in this research are the 10th grade students in the first semester at MAN Palopo. The object of this research is the appropriate ESP 10th grade materials for students of MAN Palopo and students perception of the product.

D. Procedure of Development

1. Research and Development Models

According to Borg and Gall (2021), research and development is a process used to develop and validate educational products. The results of development research are not only development of an existing product but also to find knowledge or answers to practical problems.

Sugiyono (2018) argues that the research and development method is a research method used to develop and validate educational products. Development method is a research method used to produce certain products, and test the effectiveness of these products. To be able to produce certain products, research is used that needs analysis (survey or qualitative methods are used) and to test the effectiveness of the product and to test the effectiveness of the product so that it can function in the wider community, research is needed to determine the effectiveness of the product. In the wider community, then research is needed to test effectiveness of the product (experimental method is used).

Regarding the characteristics of research and development, Borg and Gall (1989) describe four main characteristics, namely:

1. Studying Research Findings Pertinent to the Product to be Develop

At this stage the researcher conducts a study or initial research to find research findings related to the product to be developed. Will be developed initial research can be done with qualitative or quantitative approaches, or both. To produce a mature and accurate analysis, it is recommended to use mixed methods in data collection and analysis. It is recommended to use mixed methods in data collection and analysis. This initial research is intended to assess the needs needs to be met and problems to be solved in research and development. Research and development needs can come from various problems faced, both individually, in groups of learners and institutionally, for example: problems about learners and institutions, for example: problems about the decline of morality values, then the need is for a model of education that is able to maintain or develop moral values develop morality values.

2. Developing the product based on these findings

Once it is clear what needs are important to fulfill, at this stage the researcher is required to search for the latest literature relevant to the needs and problems that have been identified. Literature that is relevant to the needs and problems that have been successfully identified in the previous stage, at this stage the type of relevant research is more to library research or research. At this stage, the type of research that is relevant is more to library research or library research. Library research, which is in-depth research to find various concepts and theories to provide solutions to the problems identified. Concepts and theories to provide solutions to the problems faced in the first stage. In other words, this research used to criticize existing models if any, and formulate a new model. At this stage the researcher also conducted expert validation of the developed model. Model that has been developed. Expert validation can be done in two ways, namely: Focus Group Discussion (FGD) technique and Delphi technique. Delphi technique FGD is conducted by holding discussions directly with various experts who meet discussion directly with various experts who meet each other in a forum. Meanwhile, the Delphi Technique is carried out by consulting or discussion by visiting one by one experts, each of whom do not meet each other. The power can be exercised jointly. The Delphi Technique first and then the FGD, or only use one of them.

3. Field testing it in the setting where it will be used eventually.

At this stage, the product is tested in the setting where it will be used eventually. Situation where the product will be used eventually. Test there are two stages, namely: limited trial and wider trial. Test is conducted to measure whether the product produced is effective or not. The results of the trial can have several possibilities, namely: (1) the product is indeed ineffective, then the consequences are product development activities can be stopped or a rather massive revision is made, (2) the product is effective, but there are some things that need to be revised, (3) the product is effective and can be used immediately need to be revised, the product is effective and can be directly disseminated.

4. Revising it to correct the deficiencies found in the field-testing stage.

At this stage the researcher revises the product to revise the product to correct the deficiencies found in the field-testing stages. Product revision can be done twice, namely: after completion of the limited trial and revision after a wider trial. Revisions can also be made directly to the product or to the method of operating the product. For example, if the product is a module, then the revision can be on the content of the module or on the method of implementation of the module.

The field of research and development studies according to Sumarno (in Ghufro, 2011) includes organization and management, financing, quality/learning, and teachers. Problems in organization and management are related to the methodology of changing the systemic behavior of educational organizations, including structural bureau cratisation, cultural democratization, and interactional professionalism. For problems in the field of education financing education, including school/unit financing models, teacher education unit, teacher salary model, community funding model, and scholarship model. While problems related to the field of quality of learning include curriculum implementation, the effectiveness of programmer performance (acceleration, excellence, culture development, final exams), and models of culture, final exams), and active and culture-based learning models.³⁶ Meanwhile, problems in the field of teachers include an effective training model, an effective LPMP model as a centre for teacher career development, a model for improving teachers' centre for teacher career development, models for improving teacher welfare, and professional advocacy. Teacher welfare, and professional advocacy.³⁷

Procedures in design or development are the steps that must be followed in making a product. In this development the researcher adapted the 4-D development model, namely:

1. Define

In this step, student analysis is required. Researchers collected data about students' needs in learning English. Researchers provided a questionnaire containing the target needs (needs, deficiencies and desires) and learning needs (activities and settings). Researchers will also interview grade 10 students of MAN Palopo to obtain information about students' needs. This analysis aims to determine the appropriate folktales books to teach narrative text reading skills to grade 10 students at MAN Palopo.

³⁷ Borg, W.R. dan Gall, M.D. (1989). Educational Research: An Introduction, Fifth Edition. New York: Longman.

2. Design

In this step the researcher will design a product about folktales books in learning narrative text reading skills based on data and results of student needs analysis in the form of a questionnaire.

3. Develop

After going through several stages, the next step is the development stage. In this step, the researcher developed the material. Researchers provide products to material experts and book development experts for validation and get suggestions for product improvement, then they would be revised according to expert advice. Expert judgment is expected to make products more precise, effective, tested and better. At this stage, the product is designed and developed, and would be revised again as the final product draft.

4. Disseminate

After the product has been developed and revised based on the assessment, in this step the product would be given to grade 10 students at MAN Palopo.

E. Techniques of Data Collection

The researcher used two instruments to collect the data in this research:

1. Questionnaire

This research would use the questionnaire to collect data about target needs (necessity, wants, and lacks). It is also used for experts' judgment to evaluate and validate the developed pocketbook through validation sheets by three expert judgments. Besides that, students' perceptions about the deficiency and the developed pocketbook feasibility were also collected through a questionnaire.

2. Interview

The researcher would interview some ten grade students and English teachers to collect the data to know more about the target needs and support the data from the questionnaire.

F. Techniques of Data Analysis

1. Data Analysis of Questionnaire

Data from the needs analysis questionnaire, given to students at the need analysis step, it described based on the student's answers to represent their needs. It is managed through quantitative and qualitative descriptive methods. The results of the needs analysis questionnaire were calculated using the following formula:

$$X = \frac{\sum x}{N} 100\%$$

X = Score
 $\sum x$ = The same answer given by students
 N = The total of the students

The highest percentage states the most accepted choices from the students.

It is the researcher's background in designing a folktales book.

2. Data Analysis of Expert Validation and Students' Perception

The researcher use Liker scale to calculate the results of the expert's validation and students' perceptions. The data will be analyzed by calculating the average of the answer based on experts and students scoring.

The data analysis would apply the formula proposed by Arifin, Z (2013) as cited in Sagita:

The number of answer very good	= VG × 5	=...
The number of answers good	= G × 4	=...
The number of answer fairly	= F × 3	=...
The number of answer poor	= P × 2	=...
The number of answer very poor	= P × 1	=...
Total score		=...

After calculating the total score, then the researcher will calculate the average score by using the following formula:

$$M = \frac{B}{N}$$

M = mean score

B = total score

N = total number of material topics

The result of the average score was continued by calculating the value by using the following formulation:

$$X = \frac{M}{N}$$

X = the value

M = average score

N = the number of value

Figure 3.4 Formulation of Value Score

After the average score of each material topic is calculated, the researcher would determine it as a Luwu Folklore Book that is suitable for Grade 10 Students at MAN Palopo.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

This chapter discusses the findings and discussion of the research procedure. At this stage, the researcher will show the detailed process of developing Luwu folktales bilingual book (English and Tae Language) as reading material for 10th grade of MAN Palopo. In developing Luwu folktales book, this research uses the 4D model research and development model described in chapter three. The following description provides more information about each stage.

A. Findings

At this point, the researcher provides a detailed explanation of the Luwu folktales book design. The researcher used 4D model (define, design, development, and disseminate), as described in chapter three. The following explains the specifics of each of these procedures.

1. Developing Luwu Fokltales bilingual book first step this section determines the students' wants, needs, and requirements for the design product. To collect data, the researcher administered a questionnaire with 16 questions and interviewed the students of class X.B MAN Palopo and the English teacher of class X.B MAN Palopo. There were a series of questions in the interview format. After asking some students, the researcher summarized their responses. The researcher started distributing the questionnaires after obtaining instrument validation from experts. Siti Hartina, S.Pd., M.Pd. was the expert for the validation of the needs analysis. After the validator validated the questionnaire, the researcher proceeded to the next stage of distributing the questionnaire through Google Forms. After obtaining the questionnaire data, the researcher checked the answers to each question asked by the students of class X.B MAN Palopo. The percentage of students' answers would be displayed in the graph below.

2. Students' perceptions of the Luwu Folktales bilingual book in English language learning were very positive. Based on the assessment results, this book obtained an average score of 4.3 from the rating scale used, with an average percentage value reaching 86%. This figure shows that the majority of students rated this book as very good in supporting the English learning process. This indicates that the Luwu Folktales Bilingual book is not only interesting and easy to understand, but also effective in helping students improve their English skills through bilingual local stories. Thus, this book can be considered as a relevant and fun learning media for students in learning English.

1. Define

a. Interview results with the English Teacher and Student

The researcher interviewed Mrs Rusni, S.Pd as the English teacher regarding English learning and comprehension related to English reading materials of students in class X.B MAN Palopo. The result of the interview is as follows:

No.	Question	Answer
1	How many students are in the class you teach?	"The average for class X B is around 30 students per class".

2	What curriculum does the school currently use?	"The school currently uses the independent curriculum".
3	What is the students' current level of English comprehension?	"So far, their level of understanding is still in the basic category, but some of them have been able to communicate in English in simple contexts, for example when asking permission to leave the class or when going to the toilet".
4	How is English learning for class X related to the material?	"So far in teaching, the teacher always relates the material to their daily lives, including the English vocabulary".
5	Is the English learning in class X still general or specific?	"For now, the learning materials are still general".
6	Would a Luwu folklore book related to local culture and life be needed and helpful?	"Yes, it is very necessary, so it will help students to be motivated to read and in learning English".

The researcher also conducted interviews with students of class X B MAN Palopo. The results of student interviews are as follows:

No.	Question	Answer
1.	How is your general understanding of English?	"Our English comprehension is still basic".
2.	How much vocabulary do you have in English?	"For now, I already know quite a bit about vocabulary, for example in terms of nouns, but there are also many of my friends whose understanding of vocabulary is still lacking and don't even know".
3.	How do you feel about the existence of a Luwu folklore book, is it needed?	"I think it is very useful, so with the existence of an interesting Luwu folklore book, it will certainly help us in reading and learning".

Based on the results of the needs analysis, the majority of students are more interested in fiction and folktales that contain moral values, and consider reading skills in English to be very important for education and employment. They tend to prefer reading activities that involve finding the gist of the passage, explaining the meaning of words, and creative activities such as rewriting or making illustrations. However, most students still face moderate to difficult reading difficulties, mainly due to difficult vocabulary and complex sentence structures. Students read more often at home, rarely discuss what they read, and have a preference for certain types of folktales, although the frequency of reading folktales is still relatively low. To support their needs, students want books with attractive designs, pictures, and colors, reading lengths that are not too long (3-4 paragraphs), and comfortable book sizes such as Unesco Size. The main factors in choosing stories are the origin of the story and compatibility with personal interests, with the hope that folktales can help understand the story and moral values.

2. Design

In the design stage, researchers designed the product based on the needs analysis, observations, and interviews that had been conducted previously. The researcher included topics based on the students' choices in the questionnaire that were in accordance with their wishes. The researcher designed the product using

a. Input

The input procedure is designed to create specific learning objectives. The design, which includes font choice, graphic choice, and page layout, was also decided and illustrated by the researcher. In addition, the researcher also adopted the layout of images and information in each chapter. The design of this Luwu folklore book consists of 7 units. The contents of the units are princess Tandampalik and the magic spring, the story of king Luwu and the golden Turtle, the legend of to Manurung, the history of Bulu' Poloe, mount Bambapuang, the beginning of Batu Mebali village.

The History of Bulu' Poloe Sejaranna Bulu' Poloe

Several hundred years ago, in the ancient days of the Luwu Kingdom, precisely in Cerekang, there was a Prince named Sawerigading, the son of the king of Luwu named Batara Lattu. At one time, Sawerigading dreamed of meeting a beautiful girl. In his dream, Sawerigading married the girl. Shortly after he woke up, his father called him and told him that Sawerigading, go to China, there is a girl named We'cudai, see her and marry her. Because of Sawerigading's obedience to his father, he complied with his father's request. Sawerigading was sent empty-handed and without any bodyguards to accompany him. He took the initiative to build a boat to use to go to China.

So Sawerigading went to a forest, where there was a very large wooden tree. The tree was known as the 'Walengeng Wood Tree'. Sawerigading cut down the tree to make a boat. When Sawerigading cut down the Walengeng tree, it turned out that the tree hit a Bulu' (Mountain) so that the Bulu' was split or broken into two (Polo). This event caused the place to be known as Bulu' Poloe (broken mountain). As a result of this event, the place has fresh water in the middle of seawater due to the shift of the broken mountain.

South Sulawesi is one of the regions in Indonesia that has a well-known mystical story. This story is widespread in almost all regions in South Sulawesi and has existed for hundreds of years. In South Sulawesi, it is said that there is a mystical creature known as 'Poppo'. The existence of this creature is found in West Sijai, Pinrang, and Bulukumba. However, it is said that, in general, the existence of Poppo is almost spread throughout South Sulawesi. Although the life of the community has become more modern, it turns out that this story still exists today, especially in the Luwu Region.

In addition, it is also a hereditary disease. Thus, Poppo is a creature that can change its form at any time. Some say that this disease can be transmitted by small animals coming out of their ears, mouths or noses when they are asleep and these animals enter the body of the person next to them. It is said that this person could also contract Poppo's disease.

Driven by curiosity, the community then tried to approach the source of the fire, and it turned out that not far from there there was a beautiful boy, handsome and with clean white skin. In fact, according to the judgment of the Tindalan community at that time, besides being handsome, the child also had the characteristics of a To Mallabi child. The child was first found by a mother from Tindalan village named Masaang. 4) Disseminated

At this stage, the researcher socialized the Luwu folklore book to the students of class X.B MAN Palopo after going through several stages and revisions. The researcher socialized the book to the students in the classroom and explained the contents of the book. The students welcomed the book well and enthusiastically, as well as the English teacher who was also very enthusiastic and certainly gave positive comments because according to him this could be used as teaching material and certainly very motivating students in learning English.

B. Discussion

This research was based on a needs analysis of Islamic High School students. It was found that English learning in MAN Palopo especially in reading, their interest in reading English stories is still low. So this research comes as a form of solution to these problems by making a product in the form of a book of Luwu folklore, of course with the hope that this book can motivate students and help students in learning English, especially in reading comprehension.

The design process was developed using the 4-D model, which consists of the following stages: Define, Design, Develop, and Disseminate. The first step taken by the researcher is the define stage, which is to conduct a needs analysis using a questionnaire in the form of a Google form which is used to get the needs, desires, and shortcomings of students related to mastery and understanding of English, besides that the needs analysis is also carried out through interviews with students and English teachers. The questionnaire shows the various factors needed in making folklore books. The results showed that students need folklore books to help them learn English because it is known that many of them have a basic understanding of English so this book can motivate them in learning English.

After collecting the results of the student needs analysis, the researcher took the next step which was to design the product. This product is designed of course based on the needs, desires, and shortcomings of students shown after they answer the questionnaire. This step uses the information that has been collected by the researcher, which is then analyzed to determine whether the material is appropriate for the student's level.

After finalizing the design of the Luwu folklore book, the researcher then developed the product with based on assessments from experts. The experts assessed the initial product using a questionnaire. The assessment was given by three experts where they gave some comments and suggestions regarding the English vocabulary book that had been designed. This expert assessment aims to ensure the feasibility of a product. As a result, the validation of the Luwu Folklore Book from the design and layout expert was qualified as “good”, the validation result from the linguist was qualified as “good” and from the material expert was qualified as “very good”. In conclusion, the product can be used with minor revisions such as the selection of font type and size, the selection of images is made more real, the selection of words is improved to be more precise, and also the order of each unit story is improved to be more systematic. In addition, researchers have also collected trial results to find out how students perceive the product, for the results of student perceptions are categorized as -very good. This indicates that the folklore book can be used without revision. The reason is that the book of Luwu folklore as a whole is interesting. The material, font, color, cover, and overall appearance presented in the folklore book are very good for the students.

In addition, it shows that this Luwu Folktale Book is one of the alternative methods for students in learning English. The purpose of this Luwu folktale book is to motivate students in learning English, especially for reading comprehension, this book is expected to help students in learning English vocabulary and train critical thinking skills, and to encourage the preservation of local culture and traditions using folktales. The next goal is as a form of self-learning tool, where this storybook can be used by students to learn independently, both outside of class hours and in the classroom.

The findings of this study are systemically related to previous studies on the production of folklore books. Of the five related previous studies, all findings show that the storybooks made are very helpful and can be a supporting medium in learning English. One of the related previous studies is the research conducted by Nur Wahyuni Safitri Syam, N. U. R. (2021), in her thesis entitled “Developing Folklore Books for Beginner English Language Learners”.³⁸ The results of all stages of validation that have been carried out show that the folktales book made is feasible and very helpful to be applied to students of SD IT Insan Madani Palopo and as for previous research related to this is research conducted by Tompo, Dewi Sri, Sahraini Sahraini, and Magfirah Thayyib (2023), in her thesis entitled "Enhancing Junior High School Literacy: Incorporating Luwu Cultural Heritage into Reading Materials".³⁹ The study underscores the positive impact of culturally tailored educational materials on student engagement and skill development in language learning.

In the research of Nur Wahyuni Safitri Syam, N. U. R. (2021), in her thesis entitled "Developing Folklore Books for Beginner English Language Learners" focuses on improving students' reading skills and was developed using the ADDIE method. While my current research focuses on developing a book of folklore using two languages so that it will be easier for students to understand because it uses their local language. This storybook consists of 7 units and is classified based on topics that match the ability of students systematically, besides that there is a vocabulary list and also equipped with exercises at the end of the unit. The book is designed as well as possible with an attractive design that is equipped with pictures and translations. In Tompo's research, Dewi Sri, Sahraini Sahraini, and Magfirah Thayyib (2023), in their thesis entitled "Enhancing Junior High School Literacy: Incorporating Luwu Cultural Heritage into Reading Materials." focused on improving students' reading skills and developed using the ADDIE method. "focused on improving students' reading skills and was developed using the ADDIE method. The development phase resulted in an initial draft of a reading book consisting of four chapters: "Heroes of Luwu", "Luwu Folktales", "Luwu Tourism Attractions", and "Luwu Traditional Food". While my current research focuses on the development of folktales books using two languages.

THE STORY OF KING LUWU AND THE GOLDEN TURTLE (CARITANNA POANG RAJA LUWU SOLA KALAPUANG BULAWAN)

The Story of King Luwu and the Golden Turtle (Caritanna Poang Raja Luwu)

Once upon a time, there lived a king who ruled the Kingdom of Luwu. This king was known to be wise, just, and very favored by his people. The kingdom was known to be prosperous and peaceful. However, one day a big problem occurred in the kingdom. A golden turtle suddenly appeared in the waters of Luwu, attracting the attention of the locals. This was no ordinary turtle; it had a shimmering gold coloured shell, making it look extremely rare and valuable.

Wattu jolo-jolona, den tuo mesa Pakaraja ma'parenta jio Kapoanganna Luwu. Ya te' Pakaraja ditandai melo penawanna, adele', mane' napural duka iyya ra'ya'na. Rapoanganna Luwu wattu ya to' sugi' na siama' nasang ra'ya'na. Galan mesa kajadian, den sussa rampoi jio to' Rapoangan. Den kalapuang susi bulawan tappa tollong jio wai, buda tau titare' pentronnna lako la tiroi. Ya te' kalapuang wadding kapang olok-olok wai jago appa boko' na macora susi bulawan, yamo to' na ditro maballo appa tae senga'na nasarrupan.

The people flocked to catch this golden turtle, as they believed it brought great luck and wealth. However, the king had a different feeling. He did not believe that catching the golden turtle would bring good fortune. Instead, he felt that the turtle was a sign from God or a supernatural force that was testing the wisdom of the people and himself as a leader.

The king then gathered his advisors and subjects in the palace square to talk about the golden turtle. During the meeting, many people urged the king to immediately capture the golden turtle and bring it to the palace, hoping that it would bring greater glory to the kingdom.

The Legend of Sawerigading (Legenda Sawerigading)

As the heir to the throne of the Luwu Kingdom, Sawerigading had been groomed since childhood to be a strong leader. Sawerigading had a twin sister named We Tenriabeng. As they grew up, Sawerigading fell in love with his own sister. However, this love was strictly forbidden as it was a relationship that was considered a violation of custom and natural law.

THE LEGEND OF TO MANURUNG (LEGENDA TO MANURUNG)

The Legend of To Manurung Legenda To Manurung

Once upon a time, in the green and fertile land of Luwu, there lived a people who knew no rules. Their lives depended on nature, but without leaders, they were often involved in disputes. The people of Luwu lived in uncertainty, with no law to guide them. They often fought over land, water, and natural products. However, they believed that one day there would come someone who would lead them, someone who was not a mere mortal but a messenger of the gods who descended from the sky to bring peace and justice.

Wattu jolo-jolona pa jio Tana Luwu, tondok ijo na suburu, den tuo masaraka'na tae'pa naisseng disanga parakan. Day after day, To Manurung sat there, silent and speechless, but the look in his eyes radiated an authority that made anyone who saw him feel subservient. One night, a village elder named La Pongka, known as a wise and brave man, decided to go to see To Manurung. He brought offerings of fruits and water from a mountain spring, hoping to communicate with the mysterious figure. Carefully, La Pongka climbed to the top of the mountain, approached To Manurung, and placed his offerings before the figure. In a soft yet powerful voice, To Manurung finally spoke, 'I have come to bring peace to this land. The gods have sent me to lead you, organize your lives, and bring prosperity to Luwu. I will be your first king, but you must promise to be loyal to the laws I make and live in peace with each other.'

La Pongka felt that Manurung's presence was the answer to the people's prayers. He immediately returned to his village and conveyed the good news to the entire population. News of To Manurung quickly spread to other villages. The entire population gathered at the foot of Mount Latimojong, awaiting orders from their new leader. With great wisdom, To Manurung began to teach the people about the importance of living in harmony. He taught them the customary laws, known as Ade', which governed the social and spiritual life of the community.

As a king, To Manurung not only led in terms of rules and laws, but also led the people in war against external enemies. Once, a tribe from a neighbouring country attacked Luwu, wanting to seize its natural resources. To Manurung led his troops with incredible bravery. With clever war tactics and high morale, his troops successfully repelled the enemy and protected their land.

From this marriage were born the offspring who would go on to continue the dynasty of the Luwu kingdom. His sons inherited their father's wisdom and courage, and they went on to become kings who ruled Luwu with justice and wisdom.

The History of Bulu' Poloe (Sejaranna Bulu' Poloe)

Several hundred years ago, in the ancient days of the Luwu Kingdom, precisely in Cerekang, there was a Prince named Sawerigading, the son of the King of Luwu named Batara Lattu. At one time Sawerigading dreamed of meeting a beautiful girl. In his dream, Sawerigading married the girl. Shortly after he woke up, his father called him and told him that Sawerigading go to China, there is a girl named We'cu'dai see her and marry her. Because of Sawerigading's obedience to his father, he complied with his father's request. Sawerigading was sent empty-handed and without any bodyguards to accompany him. He took the initiative to build a boat to use to go to China.

Pirang ratu' mo taun lendu, Jamanna Punene' jio Kapuanganna Luwu. Cerekang den Ana' Pakaraja disanga Sawerigading. Ana'na Batara Lattu Mesa wattu. So Sawerigading went to a forest, where there was a very large wooden tree. The tree was known as the 'Walenreng Wood Tree'. Sawerigading cut down the tree to make a boat. When Sawerigading cut down the Walenreng tree, it turned out that the tree hit a Bulu' (Mountain) so that the Bulu' was split or broken into two (Polo). This event caused the place to be known as Bulu'Poloe (broken mountain). As a result of this event, the place has fresh water in the middle of seawater due to the shift of the broken mountain.

It is said that the Walenreng tree that Sawerigading cut down was a nesting place for birds, so when the Walenreng tree fell, there was a flood of eggs in Bulu'Poloe. From the flood of eggs that occurred in Bulu' Poloe, a tribe called the Padoe tribe emerged, where the Padoe tribe was the Bajo people who lived in Bulu' Poloe at that time. During the egg flood, many Padoe people drowned. But the Padoe tribe did not die during the egg flood that occurred during Pitu Ngesso Pity Wenni (Seven days and seven nights). This is because the Padoe tribe can walk on the bottom of the sea, but after that incident, no Padoe tribe was found in Bulu'Poloe.

This is the reason why, until now, many people did not know about the beauty of Bulu'Poloe, because no one inhabits the place anymore. In addition, the distance travelled is quite far to get there.

In ancient times, at the foot of Mount Bambapuung, there was an old kingdom called the Tindalun Kingdom. While in the kingdom, there was a small village that was also named Tindalun. It is said that once upon a time, there came a person called 'To Mallaorilangi' (a person who came down from the sky) or another term called 'To Manurung'. He came to Tindalun village, which is located south of Mount Bambapuung. According to the story, 'To Manurung' is said to have come from Tangsa, a region in Tana Toraja.

When the boy reached adulthood, he was married off to a very beautiful daughter of the king of the Tindalun Kingdom. From that marriage, their son was born, who was named Halando Palapanna. This son became the leader of the Tindalun Kingdom, and it became a prosperous kingdom because it was endowed with abundant natural resources. Unfortunately, this blessing made the people of Tindalun forget themselves and live with fun and even violate the rules or customary norms that prevailed at that time. The behavior of the people who at that time highly upheld the culture and customs of their ancestors began to shift. Free sex was reported to have colored their days so that they were infected with disease. The disease even spread to the royal family and involved one of King Tindalun's children.

UNIT 7

The Beginning of the Formation of Batu Mebali Village (Sule Mulanna Desa Buntu Mebali)

The Beginning of the Formation of Batu Mebali Village (Sule Mulanna Desa Buntu Mebali)

Once upon a time, there lived a woman who lived in a village with her two sons and daughter, named Rappen and Kalisu. Her husband had died a long time ago, so they only lived with three of them. They always lived happily, and every day went to look for firewood in the forest. They also had pets that they fed every day.

Jolo-jolona, den tuo mesa' Indo' sisola daddua anakna, muane na bene torro lan Rampong. Ana' muanena disanga Rappen, ana' benena disanga Kalisu. Yate' Bene matemo muanena jadi sippattallu ri tuo massannang jio banuanna. Allo-allo sippattallu male jaka' kaju lan panggala'. Den duka olok piaranna, nabeng duka kande allo-allo.

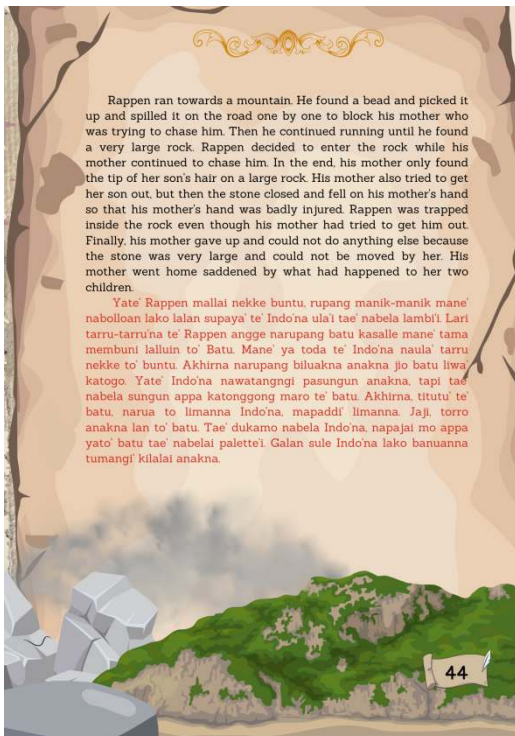

One day, his mother wanted to go to the market to buy vegetables. Then she told her son, Rappen to feed his sheep with Kalisu (sweet potato). Rappen did not know that Kalisu was sweet potato. After his mother returned from the market, she cooked for her children and then served them at the table to eat together. Soon she was looking for her daughter Kalisu. Then she asked Rappen, 'Rappen, where is your sister?' Then Rappen replied, 'I cooked it and gave it to the buffalo.' Then his mother was so angry that she took a piece of wood to beat her son.

Mesa wattu, Indo'na la male pasa' alli utan. Nakuanni to' anakna, Rappen, napakandangan pura Kalisu (Handora) to' tedongna. Yate' Rappen tae pale naisseng i yato' disanga Kalisu, yamo to' Kandora'. Paissenganna iya, yato' Kalisu sanganna adinna, tae'mo na mappikiri' lambe' tappa nanasu te' adinna, Kalisu, mane' nabeng tedongna. Sulena pasa' Indo'na, tarru male mannasu mane' mapalenna jio meja tawana lanakande sipattallu anakna. Tae'na masai, Indo'na najaka to' anak benena disanga Kalisu. Mekutana lako Rappen, nakua 'Rappen, umba naolai adimmu?' Membali Rappen 'Mangka mo kutangka' mane' kubengang tedong'. Galan sengke Indo'na, ala kaju la nagasa to' ana' muanena.

Rappen ran towards a mountain. He found a bead and picked it up and spilled it on the road one by one to block his mother who was trying to chase him. Then he continued running until he found a very large rock. Rappen decided to enter the rock while his mother continued to chase him. In the end, his mother only found the tip of her son's hair on a large rock. His mother also tried to get her son out, but then the stone closed and fell on his mother's hand so that his mother's hand was badly injured. Rappen was trapped inside the rock even though his mother had tried to get him out. Finally, his mother gave up and could not do anything else because the stone was very large and could not be moved by her. His mother went home saddened by what had happened to her two children.

'Yate' Rappen mallai nekke buntu, rupang manik-manik mane' nabolloan lako lalan supaya' te' Indo'na ula' tae' nabela lambi'. Lari tarru-tarru'na te' Rappen angge narupang batu kasalle mane' tama membuni lalluin to' Batu. Mane' ya toda te' Indo'na naula' tarru nekke to' buntu. Akhirnya narupang biluakna anakna jio batu liwa katogo. Yate' Indo'na nawatanggi pasungun anakna, tapi tae' nabela sungun appa katonggong maro te' batu. Akhirnya, titutu' te' batu, narua to' limanna Indo'na, mapaddi' limanna. Jaji, torro anakna lan to' batu. Tae' dukamo nabela Indo'na, napajai mo appa yato' batu tae' nabelai palette'. Galan sule Indo'na lako banuanna tumangi' kilalai anakna.

After returning from the mountain, his mother went straight to the buffalo pen to see her daughter, and it turned out that the buffalo had not eaten Kalisu as she had only eaten plants. Her mother was very happy to see her and rushed to treat Kalisu. Her mother was always singing and trying hard to bring Kalisu back to life. Soon Kalisu came back to life, and her mother was very happy to see her. But after Kalisu was healthy, she was very sad because she never saw her brother's whereabouts. She was always looking for her brother named Rappen. She really missed him.

Sulena jio Buntu, Indo'na Rappen tarru male lako kandang tedong tiro anak benena. Ternyata yate' tedong tae'na nakande to' Kalisu (anak benena) appa tannia kandena. Masannang Indo'na tiroi tappa najampi' to' Kalisu sambil makkelong tarru, supaya tuwo sule anakna. Tae' na masai, tuwo sule' te' Kalisu, massannang Indo'na tiroi. Tae'na masai, paja Kalisu, roddo' penawanna nasaba' tae' mo na den tiro kakanna. Male Kalisu jakai kakakanna disanga Rappen appa mamali' maro lako kakanna.

The mother was very sad to see the state of Kalisu, who missed her brother so much. She was also sickly, but she did not want to tell her about what had happened to Rappen, and she kept crying. Her tears flowed down her bed and soaked her kapok pillow. Soon from that pillow, a tree grew. Each day the tree grew bigger and bigger and is now called the 'Kapok Tree'. Kalisu always climbed the tree. She always sang on top of the tree and said that she had a premonition that her brother would return. Soon, her mother passed away. Kalisu felt sad and lonely, she didn't know where to look for her brother because her mother never told her about his whereabouts until one day he left somewhere.

Yate' Indo'na tumangi' duka tiro anakna mamali' lako kakanna. Akhina, masaki te' Indo'na tapi tae' namurai caritangan i Kalisu tentang kakanna narua musiba. Tumangi' taru' Indo'na, wai matanna ronno nalakoi ranjanna sola allonan kapukna. Tae' na masai tuwo batang kakau sule lan allonanna. Setiap allo yate' pohon tamba kajambo na kasalle, akhina disanganni 'Pohon Hakao atau Pohon Kapuk'. Tae' na masai to' mate Indo'na Masse araya makarorong nasa'dingan Kalisu Tae' mo nantand umba la naolai jao kakanna, appana yate' Indo'na tae' na den caritangan i umba naolai kakanna, latu mesa wattu. Kalisu male duka natampe banuanna, batu umba ra naolai.

One day, a villager passed by the big rock where Rappen was trapped. The people often heard the stone singing, so that the village was named 'Mebali Stone Village', because every time someone said something to the stone, the stone always answered him. Today, Batu Mebali village is inhabited by many people. However, there are still people who are afraid of stone. However, Batu Mebali Village is still safe and peaceful with its residents, who have always lived in harmony until now.

Mesa wattu, den tau lendu' jio sa'de batu katogo nangai Rappen. Yato' tau sangin nasa'ding to' batu makelong. Yamo to' disanganni 'Kampung Batu Mebali' appa setiap den tau napa'kadai to' batu, yato' batu mebali duka. Allo yate', Kampung Batu Mebali buda mo pendudu'na. Tapi den duka pa tau matak' lako to' batu. Tapi, Kampung Batu Mebali aman-aman sia na manyamang siama duka bangsia pendudu'na lako te'.
